WARREN BANK PRESIDENT FLEES; WIFE IS HELD

The First National Bank at Warren was closed today because of the theft of negotiable securities worth $213,000.

Frank L. Taylor, the president for one month, is accused of the embezzlement by Department of Justice operatives, who have a warrant for his arrest. He is missing.

A woman claiming to be Mrs. Taylor is being detained by the authorities at the Hotel Bancroft in Worcester. She was questioned for some hours.

A throng of embittered depositors gathered outside the bank, clamoring for money.

Incomplete estimates indicate that the bank will not be able to pay 30 cents on the dollar unless the stolen bonds are recovered.

The thief took everything cashable in the bank. Nothing was left except mortgages and gold and silver coin, a few bills of small denomination and such non-negotiable securities as were in the vaults.

Margare Packard, of the New England Bureau of the W. J Burns Detective Agency, said today:

"We expect an arrest hourly in the Warren Bank case and we also expect to recover many of the stolen bonds. We have fifteen operatives working on the case in and around Boston. There will be an interesting story to tell as soon as the expected arrest is made."

Department of Justice men and bank examiners have inferred that the larceny was carefully plotted

AT LAST! TO BE FAIR, WARMER

Fair and warmer weather for the holiday tomorrow was the weatherman's prediction today. Winds will be moderate west to southwest.

This promises the first real relief from the cold wave.

The snow storm scheduled for Boston last night sidestepped the city and vicinity. It snowed or rained in Washington, Philadelphia and New York. The storm then blew out to sea, and hugging the coast, caused snow in Nantucket and was today central in Nova Scotia.

Boston's lowest was 17 at 6 o'clock.

The automobile dealers of Boston will keep open house on Thursday, February 22nd, Washington's Birthday.

LORD ROBERT CECIL TO VISIT AMERICA

London, Feb. 21. (By the Associated Press).—Lord Robert Cecil plans to sail on the Majestic March 21 to visit the United States. He informed the Associated Press his trip was upon invitation of American friends and in no way a "mission." He said, however, if requested, he naturally would give his views on the League of Nations and other questions.

Regarding reports that he was about to enter Premier Bonar Law's Cabinet, Lord Robert said: "The admirable gentlemen circulating the story know a great deal more about it than I do. I have heard nothing of it and my trip to America bears out this statement."

BURIED WHEN WALL FALLS AT 3-ALARM FACTORY FIRE

Thirteen persons, including six firemen, were injured at a three-alarm fire on Worcester street, South End, today. Two firemen were suffering from fractured skulls. Three firemen were caught inside No. 132 Worcester street when one of the walls fell.

Roll-call later showed that John Regan of Engine 15 and Ladderman Jones of Ladder 15 were missing. It is feared their bodies are in the ruins.

The fire started on the ground floor of the four-story brick building at No. 132, occupied by the Building Finishing Corporation, manufacturers of wood finish.

The flames spread to No. 126, adjoining four-story building occupied by the James Sugden Company, contractors. The fire roared up through to the top of both buildings.

Lieutenant Carl S. Bowers, aide to Chief John O. Taber, led three other men into No. 132 in effort to get streams playing on the flames.

There was a crashing jar from the rear of the building. The back wall had fallen in.

RESCUERS GO IN.

Lieutenant Bowers crawled out, blood streaming from his head.

"They're inside!" he gasped.

The rescue squad, equipped with its specially designed protective clothing, darted inside in desperate effort to find the trapped men.

The flames kept on their vicious course through the interiors of both buildings, although the collective men and apparatus called by three-alarms fought to drown the fire.

Ambulances clanged to the scene, then darted off to the City Hospital with the injured.

Special details of police were sent from East Dedham street station to establish fire lines and keep back thousands of spectators who jammed into the street.

Smoke rolled up in clouds from the fast-burning fire, while flames shot up from the roofs and gave final devilish touch to the scene of destruction.

BRITISH UPHOLD SLATER CHARGES

London, Feb. 21 (By International News Service).—The British government is convinced that the charges brought against the former American consul at Newcastle-on-Tyne, Fred C. Slater, were justified and will not submit the issue to arbitration, Ronald MacNeill announced in the House of Commons today.

The American consulate at Newcastle was closed after Slater was charged with bringing pressure upon immigrants to sail in American ships. Recently business interests at Newcastle requested that the consulate be reopened.

They were brought out by a rescue squad led by Joseph McLaughlin, aid to Deputy Henry Fox, and were sent to City Hospital.

FREE LAWRENCE MAN IN SHOOTING CASE

Lawrence, Feb. 21.—A jury in the Superior Criminal Court today returned a verdict of not guilty for Mike Fenacchio, charged with assault with intent to kill Alfio Deprimo on December 27, 1921. It was alleged the defendant shot Deprimo three times. The defendant claimed self-defense.

PHELAN ACCUSED OF COLLUSION WITH COAL BARONS

FUEL BOSS DENIES CHARGES

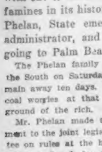
With coal yards empty and the Commonwealth confronted with one of the most acute fuel famines in its history, James J. Phelan, State emergency fuel administrator, and family, are going to Palm Beach, Fla.

The Phelan family will start for the South on Saturday and will remain away ten days. There are no coal worries at that Winter playground of the rich.

Mr. Phelan made this announcement to the joint legislative committee on rules at the hearing on the bill introduced by Representative John H. Drew of Roxbury, calling for an investigation of the fuel administrator's office.

PHELAN ASKS DELAY.

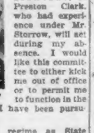
"Circumstances over which I have no control," said Mr. Phelan, "compel me to take this trip. I would like to request his committee to hold no further hearings until my return. My assistant, B. Preston Clark, who had experience under Mr. Storrow, will set during my absence. I would like this committee to either kick us out of office or to permit me to function in the manner which I have been pursuing."



Rep. J. H. Drew

Mr. Phelan's regime as State emergency fuel administrator was bitterly attacked at the hearing. It was alleged by speakers, that the office was in collusion with the hard and soft coal interests and that soon after Mr. Phelan took control the price of soft coal jumped from $7 and $8 a ton to $15 and $16 a ton.

Raymond P. Delano, member of the executive committee of the United Improvement Association and legal adviser for the Dorchester Improvement Association, declared that he resigned as a member of the State emergency fuel committee because he concluded that he could not, in justice to himself and to his conscience, serve longer. He said that three months' service on the committee convinced him that he was rendered powerless to aid the public in any way.



R. P. Delano

"Mr. Hultman was put in a can and Mr. Phelan was appointed to assist on the job while the hard and soft coal men gleefully shook hands and reaped a harvest," Mr. Delano shouted.

Mr. Delano referred to the office of emergency fuel administrator as "An autocratic bureau that usurps offices in the State House and the heat and light paid for by taxpayers."

DREW OPENS HEARING.

Representative Drew, in his opening remarks, told the committee that Mr. Phelan is a director in the United States Smelting, Refining & Mining Company, which controls soft coal mines. He said Mr. Phelan's brokerage firm, Hornblower & Weeks, had exploited the Rhode Island coal mines and that it held interest in other soft coal mines.

Representative Drew further asserted that Henry N. Sweet, a director in the firm of Hornblower & Weeks, is vice-president and director of the New River Coal Company, which produces soft coal.

"In many of the letters sent out to the trade," said Representative Drew, "Mr. Phelan gave elaborate instructions in the use of soft coal. I don't know whether there is any connection between this attempt to instruct the public in the use of soft coal and Mr. Phelan's personal interests. This committee is well aware of the acute coal shortage and of the many empty coal bins.

ASKS EXPLANATION.

"Eugene C. Hultman, commissioner of the necessaries of life, was relieved, for some unknown reason, of the responsibilities of fuel administrator and an office was created or recreated, and Mr. Phelan was put in it. Mr. Phelan told the Committee of Ways and Means that he was paying some of the expenses of the Emergency Fuel Commission out of his own pocket.

"There have been complaints that coal which should have come to Massachusetts has gone to Canada. I think it is up to Mr. Phelan to tell this committee what was done. If anything, by his committee to stop this exportation."

Mr. Phelan, in a lengthy defence of his office and the manner in which it has been conducted, admitted that he is a director of the United States Smelting Company, which owns a soft coal mine in Utah. He claimed that the product of that mine has never been shipped to Boston. He said to do so would bring the coal to a price of $24 a ton.

DENIALS BY PHELAN.

He denied that Hornblower & Weeks had anything to do with the Rhode Island coal exportation. He said that he and his firm had interests in many industrial enterprises which consumed soft coal and that this very fact argued that if he had any personal motives, it would be to keep the price of soft coal as low as possible.

One of the most surprising statements made by Mr. Phelan, in view of the present scarcity of hard coal in Boston yards, was his assertion, "Up to date we have got more than we are entitled to."

He explained that Massachusetts had obtained between thirty and forty thousand tons of anthracite this year, in excess of the 60 per cent. allowed to the State.

Answering the clause in Representative Drew's bill which sought information as to the salaries of employes in the State Emergency Fuel Administrator's office and whether any of those attached to the office were connected with coal companies, Mr. Phelan shouted the word "No!"

"One of my assistants," added Mr. Phelan, pointing to Allan M. MacLeod, "is an expert engineer. Half of his salary is paid by the State and half from the outside. Stenographers and clerks who work in our brokerage office were brought to the office of the fuel administrator to work and continued on our own payroll, as it would not be right for them to receive pay from the State.

PHELAN'S BILL, $9,000.

"Since I took office in August and up to January 31st, expenses have totalled $9,277.37."

Mr. Phelan neglected to state that Mr. MacLeod was receiving a salary of $1,000 a month, half of which is paid by the State, nor did he say what outside agency was paying Mr. MacLeod the other half. Mr. Phelan was not asked to explain that feature.

Mr. Phelan denied that he or his office desired to exploit soft coal any more than any other substitute for anthracite. He explained that it was the most logical substitute and that the public had taken to it readily. He praised the public for its cooperation and patience.

Replying to the charge that Eugene C. Hultman was ousted to give him the berth, Mr. Phelan said: "I was unaware until today that I had crowded anybody out of a position and such a lucrative one in view of the fact that I am serving without pay and giving all my time to the work."

Frank W. Merrick, chairman of the executive committee, United Improvement Association, declared the fact that Mr. Hultman was removed. He declared that Mr. Hultman had served the public honestly and fearlessly and, in his opinion, this official should have been permitted to continue to function as coal administrator.

Mrs. Ida M. Hobbard, president of the Housekeepers' League, said that the coal situation was a "disgrace." She said the women of Massachusetts were watching the fuel situation closely to see what the men in office were doing about it.

Psychology, Mr. Meyer! How About Little Tony's Frozen Feet?

They say in Washington that the New England coal shortage is "only psychological."

But five-year-old Tony Rocco of Boston thinks otherwise. Tony has frozen feet.

Washington dispatches said that Chairman B. H. Meyer of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Federal body which refused to issue priority orders to move coal ahead of other railroad freight, conferred at length with President Harding and told him there was not a single case of shortage reported which the commission did not relieve.

The anxiety in New England was said to be psychological, or the natural worry of any householder who was down to a ton of coal and was fretting about the rest of the Winter.

She said the women of Massachusetts were watching the fuel situation closely to see what the men in office were doing about it.

Coal Arrivals Halt Seizure Plan

Whitehall, N. Y., Feb. 21—Arrival of two cars of coal here today prevented the seizure of coal donated by a group of citizens. Two more cars are expected later in the day.

About forty citizens met last night and decided to raid several of the Delaware and Hudson coal cars today if they received no coal. More than half of the homes in this village are without coal and the burning of wood is the only thing that prevented many from freezing.

BANK HEAD AND $213,000 MISSING

some time in advance, and that a number of non-negotiable securities had been changed for negotiable securities.

Herbert Goldman, father-in-law of the missing bank president and a heavy stockholder in the bank, has not been seen in Worcester for several weeks, former acquaintances said today.

ASSETS WERE $314,000.

The bank had $314,000 in assets. Normally the amount in mortgages, out on secured loans and non-negotiable securities has been far in excess of $101,000.

This and other equally amazing facts are believed to be the explanation of why Norwin S. Bean of Washington, the chief national bank examiner, should be at Warren in charge of the probe.

The bank was organized two years ago. It was capitalized for $50,000. It was all local money. Then George W. Earle of Warren, decided to go to California and sold his interest to a Herbert Goldman of Worcester.

TAYLOR MADE HEAD.

Shortly after this transfer Goldman arranged for the election of his son-in-law, Frank Taylor, as president. This was about one month ago. Taylor blew into Warren like a Western breeze and told everyone that he would put the bank on the map.

The first thing he intended to do was make this institution the New England depository for an insurance company and he declared he could do this easily for he had just relinquished an executive job with that concern.

While he was bragging the State of New York took over control of the insurance company and investigators immediately charged that a part of the securities held in trust were missing.

It was also alleged that a Joseph B. Maromes of Chicago had gained control by putting in "dummy" directors and that "dummy officers" had sold bonds and pocketed the proceeds. Taylor claimed to have come from Chicago.

TRUSTED IN OFFICIALS.

While a number of the townspeople were displeased at the arrogance of the new bank president they continued to put in their cash, for they believed firmly in the directorate. On the board were Dr. J. E. Lalton, H. P. Johnson and William J. Bell.

Last week Sidney D. Gilligan, who had been with the bank since it started on March 2, 1920, resigned as cashier and the directors made the president temporary cashier.

Then on Friday Taylor went away, saying he had to go to Buffalo to attend a meeting of the directors of the insurance company, as he had just been made president.

His request was granted. No one was suspicious then. Examiners found Gilligan had left everything all right.

An employee went to the vault Saturday morning. It was virtually bare. The directors notified Harold Black, district national bank examiner.

His findings brought Bean and Department of Justice men and William J. Burns detectives speeding from Washington, Boston and other cities.

Taylor Official in Seized Insurance Firm

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 21—Justice Hinkley in Supreme Court today made permanent an order issued last week placing the affairs of the Niagara Life Insurance Company in the hands of the state insurance department. Frank L. Taylor, missing president of the First National Bank of Warren, Mass., which was closed today, is a director of the company.

The Niagara Life Insurance Company was taken over by the State Insurance Department on February 14, after evidence had been submitted to a Supreme Court judge to show that its assets had been manipulated by Joseph B. Marcine, formerly of Chicago, who owned the majority of the stock in the company.

ness. The police think he can tell them a lot about Furey.

The police also had an appointment with Mrs. Taylor. They wished to obtain any more information she might have regarding "Big Ed" and his activities. But Mrs. Taylor was not on hand at the appointed time.

Furey's limousine, in which he conducted his alleged rum piracy on both North and South Shores, was a veritable arsenal on wheels," according to Federal officers who examined it in a Lynn garage.

In the windows of the car the officers declared they found narrow round holes just about large enough to allow the barrel of a revolver or the stubby end of an automatic pistol to be shoved through after the fashion of loopholes in stockades or forts.

These holes were covered with glass plugs, easily removed. Massachusetts, Maine and New York auto registrations were found in the car, according to the investigators.

Furey, who has been positively identified as a member of the famous Nicky Arnstein gang which stole $5,000,000 in bonds in New York, is today in East Cambridge jail where he was taken when his case was continued for a week and he was held in bail of $26,000.

HAD ARMY GUNS.

After "Big Ed" had been arraigned in Boston on charges of interesting a Federal prohibition officer and robbing a Marblehead home of liquor, Federal Agent Daniel M. Casey and Police Inspectors Wallace and Remeen of Lynn inspected his limousine.

They say they found two United States army automatics under the rear seat. Dozens of rounds of cartridges, extra clips, a policeman's "billy" and handcuffs were also found, they said.

STUDENT IN FOR LIFE FREED

Cincinnati, Feb. 21 (By International News Service).—After eight months of untiring and unwavering devotion, Mrs. Leroy McKinney, Cincinnati, today sobbed happily when a brief message brought tidings that she had availed confidently while the rest of the world refused to believe.

Her husband, convicted of the murder of Patrolman Emory McCreight of Wilmington, O., is to leave the Ohio penitentiary at Columbus as soon as Governor A. Victor Donahey can sign a pardon.

The real slayer of the officer, Louis Vandervoort, son of a wealthy Clinton county farmer, has confessed that he fired the fatal shot during an attempted holdup February 14, 1922.

McKinney, 29, was sentenced at Wilmington to pass the remainder of his life in the penitentiary, but his wife refused to believe. Her husband was far from the type of young men from which bandits are recruited. He was a student of the University of Chicago and in court his appearance was the opposite of the ordinary criminal.

The young wife displayed a courage that rivals any in fiction, sustained by positive knowledge that "Roy" was with her when the shot that killed the Wilmington patrolman was fired.

U. S. HELICOPTER UP NEARLY 3 MINUTES

Dayton, O., Feb. 21.—A new record was set by the De Bothezat helicopter being perfected by the United States Air Service at McCook Field here, when it remained in the air for 3 minutes and 45 seconds in flight today. The machine, which rises and descends vertically, reached a height of 15 feet. Previous marks set by the machine in flights December 18, 1922, were a height of 8 feet and flight duration of 1 minute and 40 seconds.

GIRL, DEALER IN COAL, ACCUSES HER DRIVER

Haverhill, Feb. 21.—Charles Hilsey of Summer street surveyed the coal he had just secured from Miss Dorothy Keefe, who recently set up as a dealer, and shouted: "Two tons, my eye," or words of that general meaning.

Miss Keefe promptly came up with a weigher and two witnesses. She realized in a moment that the delivery was a very short one. But she was staggered, she says, to find that there were only 1,800 pounds. The delivery was 2,400 pounds short.

Which led to Charles A. Baker, No. 2 John street, Miss Keefe's only teamster, being charged in local court today with larceny of the missing 1,800 pounds of anthracite from Miss Keefe. Baker pleaded not guilty and was held in $200 for Saturday.

Miss Keefe told the court that she had had two previous complaints of short deliveries, one of 400 pounds, the other 600, which she had made up to the customers.

Miss Keefe is clerk in the express office of the Haverhill Transportation Company. Recently she had chance to get hold of two carloads of high-grade anthracite, whereupon she set up in the retail coal business. She took over the yard and equipment of Samuel R. Dobbis, on Hale street, and started selling with Baker as teamster.

There was interest in the fact that Miss Keefe was able to get hold of two car loads anywhere, without having been in the coal business previously.

Good Pound Sterling Talking Against Ships No U. S. A. Dogma Radio and Churches

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1923, Hearst Co.

THE ENGLISH POUND STERLING has gone above $4.70. Only sixteen cents below par. That's important news for England. In a short time, if nothing disastrous happens in Europe, her money will be as good as our dollars. Observe that the British exchange has gone up, as Britain has gradually withdrawn from League of Nations activities and Continental responsibilities, leaving the French, Germans, Poles and Italians to settle matters in their own way.

A DOZEN distinguished Senators are ready with long speeches to filibuster against the Ship Subsidy bill. They intend to kill the bill by talking forty hours or longer, and some of the talkers represent the downtrodden farmer.

Do these gentlemen realize that the farmer needs the protection of an adequate American mercantile navy? Keeping up farm prices depends on shipping abroad the surplus.

IF ANOTHER big war came with every nation needing its own ships the twelve Senators with long speeches would all be howling for shipping, and voting more hundreds of millions in a hurry, to be spent, as in the last Democratic administration, largely to build ships not worth having after they were built.

HILAIRE BELLOC, Frenchman, acclimatized in England from early youth, recently distinguished himself by writing a very stupid book attacking the Jews. He comes here to tell the United States that "A government rocks on its base when religious dogma loses its hold."

Much obliged, but the United States is distinctly established on the assumption that government can get along without any official religion or dogma, while allowing all inhabitants to have any religion they choose.

This government free from dogma, and official religion of any kind, has got on well and hasn't "rocked" to any great extent. The fewer special pleas for religion and dogma, the better for existing religions and dogmas, and the better their chance to remain undisturbed.

SOME CLERGYMEN believe that sermons by radio will injure the churches, that people will hear sermons at home, no collection taken up, and consider that they have been to church.

Talking machines do not hurt the opera. On the contrary, increasing interest in good music, they have increased attendance at operas and concerts.

Sermons by radio should help the church. Nothing can take the place of a great preacher's personality. You couldn't empty Henry Ward Beecher's church, or Spurgeon's, or draw hearers from such a man as Cardinal Newman with any radio performance.

The right kind of sermons, broadcast, will increase church attendance.

To these general suggestions, which will perhaps seem long and even childish to some of you, but which are necessary, must be added to those which apply to the particular case of the patient you are dealing with.

All these suggestions must be made in a monotonous and soothing voice (always emphasizing the essential words), which, although it does not actually send the subject to sleep, at least makes him feel drowsy, and think of nothing in particular.

When you have come to the end of the series of suggestions you address the subject in these terms: "In short, I mean that from every point of view, physical as well as mental, you are going to enjoy excellent health, better health than you have been able to enjoy up to the present. Now I am going to count three, and when I say "Three," you will open your eyes and come out of this passive state in which you are now. You will come out of it quite naturally, without feeling in the least drowsy or tired; on the contrary, you will feel strong, vigorous, alert, active, full of life;

AT THE WORD "THREE" THE SUBJECT OPENS HIS EYES

further still, you will feel very cheerful and fit in every way. ONE—TWO—THREE—" At the word "three" the subject opens his eyes, always with a smile and an expression of wellbeing and contentment on his face.

Sometimes—though rarely—the patient is cured on the spot: at other times, and this is more generally the case, he finds himself relieved, his pain or his depression has partially or totally disappeared, though only for a certain lapse of time.

In every case it is necessary to renew the suggestions more or less frequently, according to your subject, being careful always to space them out at longer and longer intervals, according to the progress obtained until they are no longer necessary—that is to say, when the cure is complete.

35 SEIZED AS COUNTERFEITERS

Rector's Accuser Is Under Arrest

2 WOMEN CAUGHT IN DRAGNET

Federal Agents Aid New York Police in Crusade Against the Suspected Band

By International News Service.

New York, Feb. 21.—With thirteen additional arrests today, the number of alleged counterfeiters scheduled to be arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Hitchcock by government secret service operatives stands at 35, among whom are two women.

The prisoners were gathered in by agents working under the direction of Captain John F. Tucker in a series of raids.

Acting on information collected by his detectives, who have been investigating a report that a well organized band of counterfeiters has been distributing spurious money, the captain personally planned the city-wide roundup.

OPERATED FOR A YEAR.

Captain Tucker dispatched operatives to a house in Long Island City, where three men and two women were arrested and to a lower West Side tenement where another group of suspects was found.

Other agents, reinforced by operatives from other cities, took into custody prisoners in various parts of Manhattan, Brooklyn and the Bronx.

The government operatives are understood to have withheld information concerning the raids from the police and a strong guard was placed about customs house, where the prisoners were taken to prevent news of the raids leaking out.

The gang is reported to have successfully operated for over a year in New Jersey.

'TRAITOR' RABBI IS OUSTED

Recognized in New York as "Blood Ritual" Case Perjurer 25 Years Ago

New York, Feb. 21.—Rabbi Yudel Elfenbein is gone from the little synagogue of the Congregation Tiphereth Israel in the Bronx, fleeing from the grisly spectre of a long-buried past.

The congregation tried Rabbi Yudel Elfenbein in the Jewish Charities Building and the charges filed against him raised again the thrice-laid ghost of the blood ritual for which Mendel Beilis was flung into a Russian prison ten years ago; for which Leopold Hilsner was sentenced to life imprisonment in Bohemia twenty years ago.

SWORE TO "BLOOD RITUAL."

They tried Rabbi Yudel Elfenbein on a charge of false witness against Hilsner by testifying that it was a Jewish custom to drink Gentile blood at the feast of the Passover, in sacrifice.

They tried Elfenbein as a traitor to the Jewish faith, in that he had renounced that faith, they said, abandoned the creed of his fathers, and then under another name, crawled back to the ancient church and preached its gospel under an assumed name.

At the end of the solemn conclave of rabbis, Yudel Elfenbein was driven forth from the faith to go where he wished, unprotected.

Reports came that he had been seen later with his heavy red beard shaved, looking utterly unlike his old patriarchial self, but these were not confirmed.

CAME HERE 2 YEARS AGO.

Yudel Elfenbein landed in New York two years ago. He went to Youngstown, Ohio, and then drifted back into a Second avenue cafe months later, so impoverished the guests gathered a collection of $35 for him and gave him letter to friends.

Shortly after he became connected with a little synagogue in Brooklyn and from there he went to the Schiff Foundation Centre in the Bronx, where he made many friends.

A heavily built, heavily bearded man of more than middle age, of evident scholarship and dramatic eloquence, he attracted attention generally When the Ku Klux raised its head in this city, Rabbi Elfenbein struck vigorously at it, and the effect of his sermons extended far beyond his parish.

SUSPICION AROUSED.

Visitors came from down town, among them men of prominence in the faith, and among them, too, rabbis of Central Europe, who had heard that this scholarly orator came from a land they knew.

They saw and heard him and among them a sudden, fearful suspicion took form. At first they did not express it, but sent other men from Vienna, from Czernowitz and other cities with which the Bronx rabbi seemed so familiar.

Rabbi Bader, the first witness at the trial, testified that he knew one Tillinger, who had taught him as a professor in Czernowitz, Galicia. This professor ended his studies in Zablatow, where he was writer and rabbinical student in the Jewish faith, and had there embraced Christianity under the tutelage of the Greek Catholic Archbishop Repto.

CHANGED HIS NAME.

This Tillinger, the witness said, altered his original name to Stanislaus and was known as Stanislaus Tillinger, a pronounced anti-Semitic writer.

More than that, he said, when the peasant Hilsner's life was at stake on a charge of murder, this Tillinger appeared in court and testified as a former rabbinical student that it was a Jewish religious custom to use blood in the Passover observance

And the man, Tillinger, was the man Elfenbein, he declared.

DESERTED BY ACCUSER OF REV. RALPH BRAY

MRS. WM. WORKMAN AN DCHILDREN

Wife of man who accused Rev. Ralph Bray of being friendly with her at a divorce trial here. The pastor was vindicated. Workman is now facing non-support and perjury charges

NOW HELD AS WIFE DESERTER

Made Accusations Against Rev. Ralph Bray and Faces Charges of Perjury

A new chapter is being written in the amazing tale of the Rev. Ralph Bray, rector of a fashionable Rhode Island Episcopal Church, and William R. Workman, electrician.

The latter is under arrest at the home of his parents in Auburn, N. Y., where was laid the scene of alleged indiscretions of his wife with the rector, and where it was discovered that the star witness against the clergyman, a woman, was an impostor.

Workman is being held on charges of non-support, abandonment of his children and desertion, and a Boston police official is speeding westward to bring him here for trial. Then, it is expected, perjury charges will be lodged against him.

Several years back Mr. and Mrs. Bray lived next door to Mr. and Mrs. Workman on Havens avenue, Auburn. He was then the rector of St. John's Church where Workman attended and where his father was a member of the vestry.

Leaders of one of the most prominent churches in Rhode Island heard of the eloquence of Mr. Bray and later learned of his especially high character and devotion to duty. They extended a call. He accepted chiefly because his wife originally came from hereabouts.

Workman tired of his wife and their children. He fell in love with a "Miss Foley" of Syracuse.

His finances could not stand the strain of running a house, keeping his youngsters and entertaining his affinity, so he left his wife.

"Miss Foley" figured both would be better if he had a divorce. Mrs. Workman was exemplary. However, they came into Suffolk Divorce Court and there charged that the cleric had been found in a compromising position with Mrs. Workman. They swore to statements that would have damned him forever and led to his being unfrocked.

The trial was going on. Came a telegram from Attorney John M. Brainerd of Auburn. It read:

"Woman witness is a impostor." It developed she was an entirely different person. Workman and the woman escaped the court before a warrant could be obtained charging perjury.

MAN COMPLAINS WIFE'S LAWYER KISSES FAMILY

New York, Feb. 21.—Former State Senator Gilchrist was amazed, excited and indignant in rapid succession when he heard himself charged in court with hugging and kissing Mrs. Annette May Marsh, her mother and sister.

The former Senator had gone to court to apply for alimony and counsel fees for Mrs. Marsh who is seeking a divorce from Harry G. Marsh. Mr. Gilchrist is Mrs. Marsh's attorney.

Marsh in an answer read in court by his attorney denied his wife's story of his alleged attempt to obtain a divorce from her by collusion. The answer continued:

"My wife's mother is divorced from her second husband. My wife's sister is suing her husband for a separation. My wife is suing me. They all have the same attorney. He apparently shows great affection for the mother, my wife and her sister, continually hugging and kissing them, addressing them by endearing terms."

"The family is at least consistent in having one attorney," said Judge Faber as he reserved decision.

FASCISTI ATTEND BRILLIANT WEDDING

Rome, Feb. 21 (By the Associated Press).—Deputy Finzi, Under Secretary of the Interior and Vice-Commissioner of Aeronautics, was married today to Signorina Clementi, niece of Cardinal Vannutelli, dean of the Sacred College.

The entire Cabinet was present, as well as Fascisti leaders, Senators and Deputies.

Premier Mussolini presented the bride an antique toilet service of solid silver. The Foci D'Annunzio gave her an amethyst necklace set in chiseled gold.

Rev. G. W. French Dead

Templeton, Feb. 21.—Rev. George W. French pastor of the Congregational Church here, died here after a long illness. He was a graduate of Dartmouth College and Bangor Theological Seminary, was ordained in Maine in 1907 and formerly held a pastorate at Middletown Springs, Vt.

SETTLEMENT OF INTER-CITY CASE IS PLANNED

The possibility of a settlement out of court of the affairs of the Inter-City Trust Company, which recently went into the hands of a receiver, induced Federal Judge Morton today to postpone a hearing on the case until a week from Monday.

Attorneys representing shareholders, mortgagees and others informed Judge Morton a meeting was contemplated in the office of Attorney Charles H. McIntyre at which an effort would be made to straighten out the affairs of the Inter City.

REALTY WORTH $700,000.

Col. Percy A. Guthrie, representing the majority of the stockholders, and Attorney J. H. Jacobs, representing other shareholders, signified their willingness to participate in such a conference. Col. Guthrie has already prepared a petition asking for the dismissal of the receiver of the trust.

Col. Guthrie said:

"I have had an expert real estate engineer look over the property in Brookline owned by the Inter City Trust, and he assures me the value of the property is not less than $700,000. All claims against the company total only $310,000. I have received an offer from a business man who is willing to give us a $350,000 mortgage on the property.

MAY RETURN 100 PER CENT.

"With such a sum available it would be possible to pay all outstanding obligations and possibly pay back dollar for dollar invested by shareholders. If not that, at least a good part of their investment. Otherwise lengthy litigation will eat up most of the assets of the company, as is usual in such cases."

Judge Morton agreed with this point of view and said the attorneys would have the assistance of the court in any move to the interest of the shareholders.

The body was ordered to the southern courtesy by Medical Examiner Leary for autopsy.

Fear of Hell and Hope of Heaven Fail Church Folk

Cleveland, O., Feb. 21.—The fear of hell and the hope of heaven have failed the church, and motion pictures are an outstanding influence in modern city life, speakers declared today before the Council of Cities of the Method.st Episcopal Church.

"Many of the older forms of restraint have broken down. The immediate result is a terrible increase in lawlessness and vice and crime," Dr. Ernest Fremont Tittle of Evanston, Ill., declared.

The church must discover, he said, a moral substitute for the old fear of hell.

FRANCE HEARS GERMANS ARE WEAKENING

Paris, Feb. 21 (By the Associated Press).—The French government has learned that the Berlin authorities have instructed German officials in the Rhineland to adopt a prudent course and endeavor to come to an understanding with the French authorities, it was said today in official circles.

The instructions are interpreted in these quarters as an indication that the German government is discovering that the expulsion of German functionaries from the west bank of the Rhine has affected its own prestige and that it is afraid of the effect it would have in promoting the separatist movement.

It is understood the instructions were given specially to officials in the Rhineland and do not apply to those in the Ruhr.

This action, following the speech made by former Chancellor Wirth, in which he declared the resistance in the Ruhr was aimed at bringing about negotiations, is taken in official circles as indicating the growth in Germany of a feeling favorable to negotiations.

Strikes Spread as Germans Are Ousted

Dusseldorf, Feb. 21 (By the Associated Press).—The conclusion of the Sixth week of the Ruhr occupation finds the French resorting almost exclusively to expulsions to impress the Germans that the orders of General Degoutte are to be obeyed. The Germans, in turn, have adopted the protest strike as the most effective way of showing their indignation.

The expulsion of Burgomaster Kotten of Dusseldorf, following closely the removal from the Ruhr of Dr. Gruetzner, caused a sensation and resulted in the walkout of most of the workers in this city. Only the street railway men and the employes of power plants are on duty.

At Mayence, the arrest of the director of posts and telegraphs was followed promptly by a walkout of the employes in this service, and troops took over the buildings. Several railway officials in the Mayence area have received jail sentences of ten to sixty days for encouraging strikers and disobeying the occupation authorities.

Advices from Essen assert that General Fournier intends to police the Ruhr with municipal forces, and has ordered the dissolution of the Schutzpolizein.

The French have expelled the Mayor of Dortmund for refusing to carry out orders.

Forbids German Police to Disarm

Berlin, Feb. 21 (By the Associated Press.)—The Prussian minister of the interior has forbidden the Ruhr police to appear on duty without their uniforms or weapons.

It is believed the object of the order is to prevent the occupation authorities from organizing an unarmed and ununiformed police force.

in Rome. The Pope supplies the land for the playground. Knights of Columbus have appropriated a million dollars for that and similar public welfare work in Rome. The thing started with the activities of Protestant missionaries in Rome, seeking to convert Catholics, offering recreation centres, playgrounds, etc. The Knights of Columbus will fight the would-be Protestant missionaries with their own fire.

Again you see Providence working mysteriously and successfully. The playgrounds and swimming pools, Protestant and Catholic, will make the lives of children happier. And that's a good thing, whatever of the judgment day may prove to have been the absolutely correct and authentic religion.

THE SUPREME COURT holds that a "high caste" Hindoo is not a "white person," therefore cannot become a citizen of the United States. The high caste Hindoo cannot logically protest against an American decision that seems to consider him an inferior. He himself looks down upon hundreds of millions of his low caste Hindoo brothers and sisters as unfit to wipe his boots, touch his precious person or breathe the air that he breathes.

Since he considers ninety-nine per cent. of the population of India unfit to associate with him or touch him, he cannot object to the United States going the whole way, and making it one hundred per cent. as regards this "high caste" country.

POPULARITY OF HANDY BAGS INCREASING

Have you a little Handy Bag in your home?

If you haven't you're just out of style, for those Handy Bags have become just as popular as radio outfits. Most everyone either has one or is going to get one.

In fact, it was just because these bags were so tremendously popular that it was necessary to suspend issuing bars at the Boston American office.

The manufacturers begged for help. "Let up for a few days and give us a chance," they said. Then each day the supply grew less and less, so it was necessary to stop until a number could be made up ahead.

Then, too, the mail orders poured in in such a volume that the office force of the American was swamped and it was necessary to let the workers a chance to catch up with the tide.

NUXATED IRON

Helps make rich, red blood and revitalize weak nerves.

Other Girls Had Dozens of Fellows—I Was a Wall Flower

My Cheeks Were Pale and Sallow, My Neck Scrawny, My Lips Colorless: Today I Am As Popular As Any of the Other Girls Because I Have Learned the Secret of Radiant Health and Beauty and Have a Well-Rounded Face and Figure.

Try making this slight change in YOUR MEALS for two weeks and watch for the astonishing results it so often gives.

For years I was so unattractive that I almost cried when I looked at myself in the mirror. Oh, how I envied other girls, whose cheeks were always filled and who were always popular and sought after by boys, who would not look at me twice. Just two weeks ago I read an article in the paper which told of a slight change in the daily diet which often changed women who had been thin, pale and unattractive, in some cases even for years, so that they got back that magnetic charm of radiant health. This article stated that the most important element is building a strong, beautiful body full of health and magnetism with sparkling eyes and rosy cheeks was a peculiar form of iron found in the husks of grain and the seeds and skins of certain fruits and vegetables. But modern methods of cooking throw these important things away so that probably 19 people out of 20 are 100% iron blood. I tried adding a little of iron this peculiar form of iron with my meals for two weeks. I feel and look years younger, with natural color in my lips and cheeks.

The above is a typical hypothetical case. It would seem that every woman whose attractiveness is impaired by lack of that magnetic charm that comes only with radiant health, would try adding a little of this newer form of iron to her daily food. It is comparatively inexpensive and may be obtained from your druggist under the name of Nuxated Iron, which should be mixed with your food as directed on each package. Amazing results are often secured in only two weeks' time. For sale by all druggists including Houghton & Dutton Co. (Dept. Store), Sanders Drug Co., Armstrong Co. and O. F. Tyre.

'TOM CAT!' SAID VOLIVA; HE MAY GO TO JAIL

Chicago, Feb. 21.—Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion City, today faced the possibility of a term in jail. He was found guilty of criminal libel by a jury last night. Counsel for Voliva announced he would demand a new trial.

Six months imprisonment or a fine of $10,000 or both, is the maximum penalty that may be meted out to Voliva.

The criminal libel charge against Voliva was preferred by Rev. Thomas Nelson, pastor of an independent church in Zion City. He accused Voliva of calling him a "billy goat," a "long ear," and a "mishevekite" among other things in a pamphlet which Voliva distributed.

Voliva and Nelson have had a number of controversies. At one time Voliva alleged that Nelson was attempting to displace him as overseer.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination to end the liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good work. They never gripe, nor leave bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the liver and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headachen, "dullness," and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

IDEAS OFFERED TO END WORRY OF RADIO FANS

A handy extension multiple phone panel easily constructed is offered by Charles H. Metcalf of Federal street, Salem, in the free tube contest.

The base is made from one of the "scholars' companions" sold at stationery and five and ten cents stores. It has a slide cover, and the lower part is gouged out of a single piece of wood. Nickel binding posts and a piece of No. 18 double flexible electric light wire complete the necessary parts.

SCREWED TO TABLE.

"The cover is screwed to the table," says Mr. Metcalf, "and the box slipped on the cover, which conceals the wiring and screw heads, and yet permits easy access to them at any time. This allows extension of cord from set to any convenient place on the table where the several cords are out of the way of the operator."

Any of the posts which are not used must, of course, be short circuited by a short piece of wire.

A handy little suggestion about set screws is offered by William P. Walkley of Washington avenue, Chelsea.

OFTEN WORK LOOSE.

The set screws that hold the dial on the shaft of a condenser or variometer are always working loose, so that the dial slips, or else they are tightened so that the threads in the composition dial are stripped.

To obviate this, remove the dial, and file the shaft so as to make a small flat surface on which the screw can get a grip.

"Don't know whether this will draw an award," says Mr. Walkley, "but I want to pass along helpful ideas."

Good stunt, Mr. Walkley. That's what we're here for.

BLAME FARMERS FOR HIGH COST OF MILK

There will be no drop in the price of milk this coming Spring unless the farmer reduces "his present profiteering prices." That is the declaration of milk dealers of New England. Dairy experts declare the farmers are keeping up the price of milk because of a shortage of cows. It is hinted that the price may soar even higher.

These facts developed at the meeting of the Co-operative Milk Association at the American House. Plans were made for a conference in March at which efforts will be made to fix one milk price from all farmers in New England.

VISIT FRIEND; FIND HIM DEAD OVER CARDS

Portsmouth, N. H., Feb. 21.—Navarenno Succi and Severa Frannzan went to see their friend, Gregorio Parito, today at his home on Russel street in the North End.

They found him dead, with two bullet holes in his breast. The room showed evidence of a convivial gathering preceding the tragedy. There were many empty wine bottles, and a deck of playing cards was scattered over the room.

Investigation disclosed that on Monday night two men visited Parito, Tuesday night the neighbors heard two shots from Parito's flat. Neighbors did not report the matter to the police, however.

The police believe that Parito won at cards and that an argument started which ended in his death. A search is being made for the two men known to have been with Parito Monday night.

200 KILLED IN BATTLE NEAR VILNA

London, Feb. 21 (By International News Service).—Two hundred Poles and Lithuanians were killed and wounded in fighting in the neutral zone near Vilna. According to unofficial reports those casualties were sustained in the fighting over the week-end. No new clashes have been reported.

Great Britain has sent a communication to Kovno protesting to Lithuania against the arrest of British army officers south of Vilna.

General Carton de Wiart and Major Grant of the British army were arrested while investigating conditions in the neutral zone.

Doctors Say It Is Criminal to Neglect a Cold

Health authorities are quoted as saying that a very large percentage of colds might be prevented and that a still greater amount of serious illness might be avoided if people would not neglect the common cold at its first appearance. Every cold carries with it an element of great danger.

That is why Father John's Medicine has established itself as the family medicine of greatest value because it treats colds in the natural way, drives them off promptly and rebuilds the power of resistance so that strength and normal health is promptly regained.

CHARLOTTE COMES HOME IN TRIUMPH

When Charlotte returned from college she brought more than a splendid education—she brought, besides, a complexion of decided beauty

When Charlotte Russell left home to go to the State University she had made up her mind to attend absolutely to her studies. Although she was only eighteen years old, her failure at social popularity during her high school career had caused her to view the future with despair, from a social standpoint.

She was quite well aware that her hopelessly unbeautiful complexion was the cause of this failure, and yet she felt that she had tried every known remedy to improve this unsightly feature.

When she arrived at the sorority house, however, and the social season of the college year began in real earnest, she found it difficult to attend assiduously to the programme she had laid out for herself. The gay groups of girls in the dining room and corridors, the happy preparations for parties and dances, and the jolly midnight conferences in the rooms stirred in her the poignant longing for good times that she found it impossible to suppress.

In a burst of confidence she confided her troubles one evening to Edith Barr, her charming and vivacious roommate. Despairingly she told how her dull and lifeless complexion detracted so completely from her appearance that she had always found it impossible to attract the men friends who always seemed to be surrounding the more successful girls.

The Story Edith Told

Charlotte gazed at the box wonderingly and then at Edith's clear, radiant complexion.

"What do you mean?" she inquired. "It is impossible that your complexion could ever have been like mine, and as for any new facial treatment, I am thro' with all of them, as there is scarcely one that I have not tried without any results."

"You have never tried this one," retorted Edith, "and if you have any desire to have a beautiful complexion, you can have it tonight."

The Girls Have a Boncilla Party

In accordance with Edith's mysterious instructions, Charlotte bathed her face in warm water and then sat back in a chair while Edith spread over her entire face and neck a smooth, gray clasmic pack which she called "BONCILLA BEAUTIFIER." As soon as the clay touched her skin she also was conscious of a tightening and gently "pulling" action that was very refreshing.

In about a half hour the Beautifier was thoroughly dry and Edith removed it with a wet towel. She then rubbed a little Boncilla Cold Cream into her patient's face, following it with Boncilla Vanishing Cream and Boncilla Face Powder; then she commanded Charlotte to gaze into the mirror.

Charlotte Is Amazed!

Slowly and only half expectantly Charlotte obeyed instructions. Her amazement was complete. It seemed impossible that this was the same face that had caused her so much unhappiness and despair. The face that looked out at her was glowing. The distressing blackheads were gone. The texture of her skin was fine and smooth. Her face was radiant and sparkling with a delicate color. Her reflection left her amazed. Edith stood by in pleased surprise at the effect of her "pet" complexion treatment. She gladly gave the rest of the Boncilla Pack o' Beauty to her friend, suggesting that she use the other three treatments that were left in the package, at some future date.

When Charlotte made her appearance the next morning her classmates gazed at her wonderingly. They could not puzzle it out, but they could not fail to realize that Charlotte Russell was actually beautiful, and judging from the number of men who now surrounded Charlotte at every campus function there could be no doubt that the girl possessed tremendous charm and beauty.

But her triumph was not complete until she returned home for the Christmas holidays. At the Country Club dance on New Year's Eve she was the centre of the most eligible group of young men the town offered. Strange that she had gone all through high school with these same boys without making any impression whatsoever on them. And stranger still that a beautiful complexion was the one step between being a neglected wall-flower and the belle of the ball.

2 SLAIN, MANY HURT, IN DUBLIN BATTLE

Dublin, Feb. 21 (By International News Service).—A battle of one hour's duration between Republican irregulars and Free State troops was fought in the heart of Dublin today.

Two Republicans were killed and several wounded. The Free Staters did not report any casualties.

The City Hall was attacked simultaneously with the Bank of Ireland. Most of the Republicans escaped.

In an auto that they captured the Free Staters found several mines and bombs.

Fighting began when the irregulars attacked the Bank of Ireland. Free State troops were rushed to the scene. Meantime the irregulars had taken shelter behind barricades. The violent volleys that followed threw the entire centre of the city into panic.

Republicans took up positions on roof tops and fired upon passing Free State soldiers. The latter rushed into the buildings, firing as they arn.

Republicans entered government buildings and started fires, but they were extinguished.

A cordon of Free State troops was thrown about that section of the city where fighting was most severe.

COLLIES STARS OF DOG SHOW

Eastern Dog Club opened its eleventh annual bench show in Mechanics building today, to continue until Friday night with 1,200 entries, covering nearly every registered breed.

Prize winners from recent bench shows in New York and Philadelphia are on hand, to compete with dogs entered from kennels around Boston.

A feature of the 1923 show is the advance of shepherd dogs in popularity. Shepherds topped the lists in New York and Philadelphia shows in number of entries. They ranked second in number here with eighty-seven benched.

Among the individual dogs much interest attached to Boxwood Berkentine, Frederic C. Hood's champion airedale, which was beaten in New York by Briarcroft Authority, Nat Brown and Briarcroft Kennels. Barkentine's owner hopes to reverse that decision here.

Boston Society Colony at Camden, S. C., Has New Arrivals, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

THE Misses Laura Taylor and Cornelia Hallowell, with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Hallowell, have joined the Boston colony at Camden, S. C.

Both Miss Taylor—who's a distinct blonde of the fluffy-haired type—and Miss Hallowell were among the girls who attended the former Rose Fessenden at her wedding to Edward L. Bigelow. The ceremonial, which took place last month in the First Parish Church of Brookline, brought out the most prominent clans of Boston's "four hundred." Young Mr. and Mrs. Bigelow are, I believe, to make their home out Chestnut Hill way, near the country home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sewall H. Fessenden.

VERILY is "Eleo" Sears of a more or less wandering nature. Just at present she's off on a trip to California, from which she is expected to return to her Beacon street home about the first of March.

Later in the month she is to sail for England, as she is to take part in the tennis tournaments at Wimbledon. These matches start in April, and this year Boston is to have quite a representation among the players, what with Edith Sigourney and Isabella Mumford both planning to try their racquets at the battle for the British Women's Lawn Tennis Championship. Last year sport-loving Miss "Eleo" went over for the matches, but only as a spectator. At the same time she showed a great deal of interest in the international polo games being played in England—but then, anything of a sporting nature is bound to captivate her attention.

MRS. GUY ANTROBUS (Mary Symonds) gave the last of a series of interesting talks at the Copley-Plaza, the subjects being famous old English houses, furniture and embroideries.

There's a notable list of sponsors for these talks, the latter including among others Meadames Godfrey L. Cabot, J. A. Lowell Blake, Charles S. Bird, I. Tudor Burr, Amory Lawrence, Arthur T. Bradlee, Philip Dexter, Edwin S. Webster, Boylston Beal and J. Montgomery Sears.

DARK-HAIRED Gertrude Russell looked very chic indeed when I saw her on the street the other day. Her frock was of gray cloth, gaily embroidered in the Russian peasant style, which has come so much into vogue. A jacquette of black fur and a trim little black hat with white flowers completed the costume.

Miss Russell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Russell, of Commonwealth avenue, and was one of the most popular debutantes of the season. She is a brunette with masses of wavy dark hair and very lovely coloring.

MRS. QUINCY A. SHAW, 2ND (Nancy Mitchell), left Aiken, S. C., a few days ago, to spend Washington's Birthday in Thomasville, Ga. Mr. and Mrs. Shaw, 2nd, whose Summer place is on the North Shore at Beverly Farms, always spend the Winter at Aiken, where their home is known as Ridgeley Hall. Recently the Shaws—he is of the Somerset Club here—had as their guest Mr. Henry Clark.

BRITON TERMS SENATOR REED 'IMPERTINENT'

Kingston, Jamaica, Feb. 21.—Great Britain has no intention of disposing of her West Indian possessions, Lord Burnham, president of the British Empire Press Union, said at a public banquet given by leading residents of Jamaica.

"Just before I reached America," he said, "there had been a debate in the United States Senate, raised by Senator Reed of Missouri, in which he and a few others had advocated the purchase of the British West Indies by the government of the United States, or rather their appropriation as a part payment of the war debt.

"There is no member of the British Parliament who believes more entirely in the saving virtues of Anglo-American friendship than I do. In fact, I look to something less tepid than our present relations, good though they may be, but all this talk about sale and barter of the West Indian Islands is a parliamentary impertinence. Happily there is no great paper or responsible society in the United States that takes it seriously.

"To say, as Senator Reed did, that we block the mouth of the Mississippi and neutralize the Panama Canal, is all bunkum. We stand, as Great Britain has always stood, for real and universal freedom of the seas. Nor can it even be said that the new service of 'bootlegging' can be set down to our account."

DRIFTING TO SEA ON ICE; SAVED

George Poulter, a Greater Brewster Island fisherman, was saved from an ice floe drifting toward the open sea by William Small, keeper of Bug Island light.

Poulter's rowboat was held fast in the ice when Small put out a dory to the rescue. He came abreast of the other man, keeping, however, outside the floe of ice, and cast him a line. Poulter was then hauled to the rescuer's dory.

His plight had been noticed by the Point Allerton coast guard crew and a boat was being launched when Small effected the rescue.

Poulter had ferried a friend to Fort Standish and was on his way back to his home on Greater Brewster Island when the ice jammed him.

PRETENDER TO PORTUGUESE THRONE DEAD

New York, Feb. 21.—Prince Miguel de Braganza, pretender to the throne of Portugal, died here today of double pneumonia.

Prince de Braganza.

The Prince, who was forty-five years old, came to this country recently to earn a living by selling insurance for the firm controlled by relatives of his wife who was Miss Anita Stewart of New York.

His marriage to Miss Stewart was solemnized in Scotland after royal complications had been smoothed over by the late Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, who raised the bride to the title of princess.

At the time of the wedding it was generally reported that the bride received a gift of $2,000,000 from her mother, Mrs. James Henry Smith, who had been divorced from William Henry Stewart.

Three children were born to them, Princess Elizabeth, Prince Jean and Prince Miguel, the latter seven years old.

The Prince was born at Reichenau, Austria, and carried the title of Duke of Vizeu, which was given to him by his father, who is still alive. During the World War the Prince was a captain of cavalry in the Prussian and Saxonian armies.

He was a grandson of King Miguel of Portugal, who reigned from 1828 to 1834.

Churches Say It Pays to Advertise

A committee of churchmen, studying the problem of how to increase interest in church work, adopted a report urging newspaper advertising.

Among other things, the report says:

"It pays in dollars to advertise. One metropolitan church increased its loose collections to $22,000 in two years, certain other smaller churches showing a proportionate increase.

"Advertising lifts the standard of preaching and service in order to make good and come up to the advertising.

"Magazines spend large sums in taking advertisments in the daily newspapers. It pays or they would not do it.

"Advertising must be consecutive, persistent, prepared for, distinctive. If a minister does not know how to advertise, let him learn how or let him get the help of an advertising man."

Newspaper advertising is the easiest, least expensive and most effective way of reaching the people anywhere at any time.

Write the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, 386 World Building, New York, for a copy of its book, "Today in the Newspapers."

GRAY CARS MAKE 33.7 MILES TO GALLON OF GAS

Since the Gray car made the transcontinental economy record of 25.8 miles per gallon last Fall, there have been several tests among the various distributors. The most recent test was made in Philadelphia by Louis C. Block, distributor for that territory, and under the supervision of the Keystone Automobile Club.

Three cars were used, and on the windshield of each, in plain view, was a glass container holding one quart of gasoline. The test was made on the Roosevelt Boulevard, and the average of the three cars was 33.7 miles to the gallon, which was only slightly under that of the transcontinental test.

Philip Plaistridge, general manager of the Brown Motors Corporation of No. 890 Commonwealth avenue, in discussing the many good features of the Gray, predicted that undoubtedly there would be even better records made right here in Boston when the Summer touring season is on. All records, he said, are being made with the regular factory equipment.

CZECHO-SLOVAKIA TO SETTLE U. S. DEBT

Washington, Feb. 21. — Czecho-Slovakia intends sending a debt funding commission to the United States to negotiate with the American World War Foreign Debt Commission for a settlement of the $110,000,000 obligation owed the American government, according to an official dispatch from Prague received by the State Department.

NEW DORT MODEL ON EXHIBITION TOMORROW

The Utterback-Gleason Company, Dort distributor for New England, will open the doors of its salesrooms at No. 870 Commonwealth avenue, for the annual Washington's Birthday exhibition of the new 1923 Dort Six models and also the Four Cylinders. The salesrooms have been tastefully decorated, and there will be a radio concert from 3 until 5 p. m.

On account of the embargo on freight from Detroit to Eastern points, the Utterback-Gleason Company has been able to secure only a few car loads of Dort cars each week, which have been far from sufficient to meet the demand existing today for the new Dort Six.

J. G. Utterback has finally been able to have the embargo lifted temporarily and a solid train load of forty-one railroad cars is now on its way to Boston. The Utterback-Gleason Company hopes to be so fortunate as to have several more solid train loads shipped within the next month.

Club to Celebrate

The annual Washington's Birthday eve celebration of the Hayes Square Outing Club of Charlestown, one of the oldest and leading organizations in the Bunker Hill district, will be held this evening at their quarters, Bunker Hill and Sprague streets, that district.

ELEVEN MODELS IN PACKARD DISPLAY

In keeping with its yearly custom the Packard Motor Car Company of Boston is planning an elaborate display in its spacious salesroom on Commonwealth avenue for Washington's Birthday.

For the first time the Boston public will be enabled to view a complete line of the Single-Six series comprising eleven different models.

CUT-OUT MOTOR ON VIEW.

A cut-out motor of this popular car will be shown on the floor. This motor will be electrically driven, showing the action of the pistons, valves and various component parts of the motor.

Another novel feature will be the first Packard ever built, being of the vintage of 1901. While this rare old vehicle may seem somewhat out of place amongst its newest brothers and sisters it will nevertheless permit the public to see the beginning of what is now one of the most popular cars on the market.

CUSTOM BUILT BODIES.

There will also be an exclusive showing of custom built bodies for the Packard Twin-Six.

The Packard Company has always made Washington's Birthday an attractive opening day for both the new models and the used car department. The salesrooms will be specially decorated for the occasion and the decorations used will be in keeping with the meaning of the day and the beauty of the various models on exhibition. Refreshments will be served.

Auto Row in Gala Array for Holiday Throng of Visitors

By C. F. DONNOCKER.

Washington's Birthday has always marked the beginning of the Spring automobile buying season and is ushered in by the local dealers with elaborately decorated show rooms and open house all along the row. Tomorrow will prove no exception. The public seems to wait for this opening before deciding on the car of its choice.

Automobile Row tomorrow will take on the appearance of a gala day with the flags, bunting, potted plants and various decorations and with strains of music floating from the show rooms. It is a big holiday and a big throng will wend its way up and down the avenue and adjacent streets where the newest models of the various makes of autos will be shown.

FULLER GUEST OF EVERETT CHURCH

Lieut.-Gov. Fuller

Lieutenant-Governor Alvin T. Fuller will bring the greetings of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts at the twenty-fifth anniversary of Glendale Methodist Church, Everett, Thursday evening.

The Men's Club of that church under the Rev. Arthur A. Pitman, pastor, will preside at the banquet to be given.

LATEST DODGE MODELS FOR HOLIDAY SHOW

Persons who contemplate buying cars this Spring can simplify the process of selection by devoting Washington's Birthday to visiting show-rooms. In the show-rooms they will be able to see a greater variety of models than the limited space at the Auto Show. If they reach a decision at this time, it will mean that on the popular makes of cars a more satisfactory delivery can be obtained.

Practically all the dealers will keep open their show-rooms. One of the most extensive displays will be that of the Henshaw Motor Co. which will have on view all types of Dodge Brothers car that it plans to put into the Boston Show and many others. This company has long featured the Washington's Birthday opening, a custom that was widely observed in the bicycle trade twenty-eight years ago when Mr. Henshaw entered business and which he has never omitted since. Tomorrow the show-room at No. 988 Commonwealth avenue will be attractively decorated and there will be music by the Bostonian Orchestra.

There will be a complete line of every type of passenger and commercial vehicle produced in the Detroit plant, which is now approaching the $50,000 mark in output. There will be two new four-passenger coupes, type "A" and the new business sedans, and the other models of open and enclosed cars. There is also being arranged a most comprehensive exhibition of light-weight resale cars of different makes and a display of commercial vehicles.

OPEN HOUSE AT SALESROOMS OF REO CARS

"As the opening day of the automobile buying season, Washington's Birthday, this year, is of special importance," says C. G. Andrews, retail sales manager of the Lincoln Motor Company, Reo distributers.

"The holiday is always a day of activity on the part of automobile buyers, who take advantage of the day to inspect the various models and often make their decisions with regard to purchasing a car. This year there are special reasons why the wise buyer will make his choice at this time.

"For the past two years, automobile prices have been more or less unstable and the buyer has had in the background of his mind the probability that cars would be plentiful and the possibility of a further reduction in their price. This year there are unmistakable indications of an automobile shortage and by all signs the prices are more likely to advance than to be lowered.

"We feel that it is wise to advise our friends to place their orders early, and for this purpose our salesrooms will be open all day on Washington's Birthday and all models of Reo cars will be on exhibition."

DODGE BROTHERS
BUSINESS SEDAN

Dodge Brothers, with equal aptness, could have named it the Family Sedan.

In the first place, it is big and roomy—a five-passenger car that will really seat five adults in comfort. There is no space wasted on superfluous adornments. Every inch of body and chassis is put to actual use.

There are no delicate cloth furnishings to be soiled by the children. The seats are upholstered in durable and attractive blue Spanish leather.

There is no sensitive varnish to be easily scratched or finger-spotted. The body is steel-built—a new principle in Sedan design—making it possible to finish the exterior in Dodge Brothers oven-baked enamel, the most durable finish known.

The rear seat furnishings come out—instantly converting the rear section into a spacious carrying compartment—handy for carrying trunks, boxes and household luggage of all sorts.

Children can romp and play to their hearts' content in this car, and when cleaning time comes, you can turn the hose on it—inside and out.

'QUAKER GIRL' SOUGHT IN REMINGTON MURDER MYSTERY ON COAST

MAY HAVE CLEW TO SLAYER

Slain Man Regretted Her Absence at Dinner on Night Before He Was Killed

Los Angeles, Feb. 21.—His "Quaker Girl," as Earle Remington, electrical engineer, was said to have termed her, was sought today by police detectives trying to find the person or persons who shot him down at his own doorway last Thursday night.

The search for the "Quaker Girl" resulted from statements said by the police to have been made to them by a Mr. Kroder, secretary to W. A. Rudgear, a broker of San Francisco. Rudgear was a member of a party of six, with whom Remington dined the night before he was killed, it was stated.

IDENTITY UNKNOWN.

Kroder said neither he nor Rudgear knew the woman's identity, but remembered Remington said when plans were being made for dinner that "it was too bad he could not get his Quaker girl."

The detectives said they thought it possible she might give them information of value.

Rudgear, according to Kroder, has placed $5,000 with his attorney to aid in finding Remington's slayer.

Private funeral services were held today for Remington.

WIDOW'S STATEMENT.

"Good fellowship," the fascinating folly of dancing down the primrose path with fair weather friends, stood indicted today by Mrs. Virginia Remington, for the murder of her husband.

"My boy was just one victim of the jungle call to jazzland," said Mrs. Remington. "The first four years we were married we were really happy. Then the jungle call of jazz sounded through the quietness of our lives.

"There followed times when my boy came to me ashamed and penitent. And told me things that hurt my heart and sang my pride. But I was patient, because I loved him. It is not hard to forgive those we love.

"But at length there came a day, about three years ago, when we first discussed divorce.

TRIED TO FORGET.

"Then suddenly we decided to close our city house and go to our estate near Chino.

"From daybreak until night we worked planting and digging potatoes which we gave to the Salvation Army and other charity institutions. There was certain serenity that came with the long hours of toil and nights found us both too weary of body to keep vigil with the horrible ghosts that had haunted us in the city.

"But once more came the jungle call from Los Angeles' bay night life. The flapper was still playing and my boy answered the call."

DISPLAYS RARE ART IN NEW COMEDY

Mr. Atwill's performance of the middle aged, self centered actor of romantic roles in "The Comedian," makes the character a very real personage. The play holds up a faithful picture of the modern stage and its people, providing an evening of rare entertainment

TUT'S MUMMY TO REMAIN IN ITS TOMB

Luxor, Egypt, Feb. 21 (By International News Service).—The mummy of Tut-Ankh-Amen may remain in its 3,000-year-old tomb in the Valley of the Kings and not be placed in a museum to satisfy the eyes of a curious world.

Lord Carnarvon, head of the Egyptologist explorers who uncovered the tomb, has been deeply moved by the protests from many parts of the world against disturbing the body of the ancient Pharaoh and especially against putting it upon public view.

It is understood that Lord Carnarvon is considering the advisability of reproducing the sarcophagus and its inner coffins in wax, allowing the mummy to remain where it was placed by the Egyptian priests more than 1,000 years before the coming of Christ.

The inner chamber of the tomb was still open today. The leaders of the exploring party have not reached a decision as to when it will be closed. Scientists continue their investigations with growing wonder over the splendor of the art objects.

Large numbers of foreign tourists continue to arrive. Most of them are content to look upon the tomb or to touch the ancient stones replaced thirty centuries ago by the hands of Egyptian slaves.

Some, however, give the scientists trouble by insisting upon a close view of articles taken from the outer chamber.

GRON WON NEW BRIDE THROUGH 'POTENTIA'

New York, Feb. 21.—Neils Gron, author, philosopher and diplomat, today told the Boston American correspondent of the romance which came to a climax in his marriage to Mrs. Sadie Gowan Dusenbury, six weeks after a bitterly fought divorce was given Mrs. Madeleine Stone Gron.

Neils Gron

"Potentia," the cult of intellectuality of which Gron is high priest, came to the rescue of its founder, by giving him his second mate.

"When I came back to New York last week, I saw Mrs. Dusenbury," Gron explained, "I was a wrecked man, but she had come direct from Egypt and Palestine, and 'Potentia' had filled her spirit. I had met her a year ago, and suggested a trip to Egypt. There among the pyramids, with the intellectual developments of which they are symbols, she had found my spirit through 'Potentia.'

RUNAWAY GIRL BACK, KEEPS OWN SECRET

After fleeing from her home over a week ago because her mother objected to her young men suitors, Dorothy Clayman, eighteen years old, of South Boston, returned to her parents. She refuses, however, to tell either her parents or the police of her whereabouts during her absence.

DESIRE TO SINK WITH SHIP DENIED

Captain George Poppe of the abandoned schooner Santino, which foundered off Nantucket, indignantly denied upon arrival in Boston aboard the coast cutter Acushnet, that he had refused to leave his ship when she was about to sink. "I certainly had no desire to stay on the Santino when I saw she was doomed," he declared.

PINEX for Coughs

'COMEDIAN' IS TREAT FOR PLAYGOERS

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

A HAPPY combination of the primary elements of theatrical entertainment, amply presented and preserved from curtain to curtain, raised the performance of "The Comedian" at the Tremont last night to a higher level of artistic achievement than usually falls to the lot of the Lenten playgoer. Sacha Guitry's brilliantly written play, artfully adapted to the needs and desires of the American theatregoer and faithfully produced by David Belasco, gave Lionel Atwill another opportunity to display his best wares back of the footlights.

CAKE ENTERTAINMENT.

It is doubtful if even the hardest shelled professor of the drama who includes Guitry in his favorite class in play building, would complain that "The Comedian" had lost any of its dramatic value or literary beauty through translation. As a comedy of temperament it held up a faithful picture of the modern stage and its people, providing an evening of rare entertainment. Mr. Atwill made the middle-aged, self-centered actor of romantic roles a very real personage. His performance was more than an intelligent portrayal of character, which is about as far forward as you ordinarily dare to move in these days of tepid drama. He brought something far more satisfying to your ears.

The fact that "The Comedian" falls into the distinctive class of better plays may not add power to box office returns, but it doesn't hold Mr. Atwill in check to his endeavor to hold your interest. Just where the dividing line between Mr. Belasco's adept theatricalism and Mr. Atwill's uplifting performance should be drawn in determining reasonability and allotting credit for so much agreeable entertainment is no tame task.

STARTLING SECOND ACT.

It is certain, however, that even the startling second act, with its clear stage and amusing rehearsal, needed the art of Mr. Atwill and the painstaking, intelligent labor of H. Cooper Cliffe and A. P. Kaye to bring out its full value. Evelyn Gosnell, too, added more than an ingenue's mite to the joy of the situation. Elsie Mackay, as a hair-brained, selfish and foolishly impressionable young thing, rose to every occasion. Mr. Atwill's support was all that any player could ask for and hope to receive—in fact, he moved in very good company. He made "The Comedian" an attractive bit of entertainment—enough to fill an evening and leave something over for the next day.

Bright Spots in Shadowland

GUSTAV BROCK, famous Danish miniature artist, whose recent exhibition at the Ehrich Galleries in New York attracted much attention, was engaged by Cosmopolitan Productions to do the hand coloring on the prints of Marion Davies' latest picture, "Adam and Eva," now showing at Loew's State. This is the first time that a famous miniature artist has been engaged for such work. In each print 300 feet of positive film is hand colored, and it requires 175 working hours of Mr. Brock to add the colors to the hundreds of thousands of tiny lanterns which form the colored part of the film and are shown in the great Venetian fete in the picture. Mr. Brock is Officer D'Academie de France and Lieutenant in the Royal Danish Army. He first exhibited at "Le Salon des Artistes Francais" in 1910, and has made miniatures of most of the present day crowned heads.

BUILD BIG DAM

THE $9,000,000 Laguna dam at Yuma, Ariz., was duplicated by technicians of the Ince studios to get spectacular shots of a breaking dam which is a feature of "What a Wife Learned." Fifty barrels of cement and 60,000 feet of lumber were hauled eleven miles by pack mules to build a replica of the original dam. When the waters from the Laguna dam were turned against it, the structure lasted five minutes and went out with a crash that could be heard for miles. The shots, as it gives way and releases torrential waters in which two men are trapped, are said to be "thrillers."

"THREE Wise Fools" will be King Vidor's first production under his new Goldwyn contract. The play was produced in New York in 1918 and ran for eleven months on Broadway. It has been playing on the road ever since. In the original cast were: Claude Gillingwater, Helen Menchen and Harry Davenport. Mr. Gillingwater, who has now departed the stage for the screen, will play the role of the lovable grouch transformed by the influence of a young girl. Tom Wise starred in the recent transcontinental tour of the stage play.

Studio Notes

Ernest Glendinning, who was seen in Boston recently at the Park Theatre as Sir Edward Caskoden, supporting Marion Davies in "When Knighthood Was in Flower," may now be seen in person at the Wilbur Theatre in the leading role in "Listening In."

SALVAGE HOPE SEEN IN LAND STOCK CASE

An "angel" who may donate $250,000 to salvage the Inter-City Trust Co. from its present doubtful, to say the least, financial state, has been found by Attorney Percy A. Guthrie of No. 157 Federal street, he says.

He declined to make known the man's name. In a meeting of shareholders of the Montague Company, the possibility of making $1,000,000 on Blake Park, the Brookline holdings of the company, was hinted at. A clash between Walter S. Thompson, representing the Inter-City Trust Shareholders' Protective Association, and W. Edwin Ulmer, representing individual shareholders, promised action for a minute, but it resulted in talk.

"PEGGY" MARSH
Returns to London from the funeral of her husband in New York to find herself involved as witness in a sensational divorce suit.

London, Feb. 21.—Following her return to London from New York, where she rushed from London on the news of the sudden death of her husband, Peggy Marsh Johnson was subpoenaed as a witness in what promises to be one of the most sensational divorce cases in British society.

The writ was served on Peggy in front of Buckingham Palace after a five-mile chase through London's most crowded streets in which she made a strenuous attempt to elude the server.

SUIT BY FURNESS.

The order for Peggy to appear as a witness is in the suit instituted by Thomas Stephenson Furness, a cousin of Lord Furness, one of the most prominent shipping magnates in England, against Elizabeth Fae Furness, naming as corespondents Maurice, the famous dancer and former husband of Florence Walton, and Captain Gray, an officer in the British Guards.

Elizabeth Fae's maiden name was Cohen and she came from New York. She married Furness in London in 1915. The husband, according to Universal Service information, alleges that she was intimate with Maurice and Captain Gray at Deauville in 1920, when Mrs. Furness was stopping at the Normandie Hotel with Peggy, who was her guest.

The case comes up Thursday before Sir Henry Duke.

CALLED IN DEFENCE.

Maurice is living in Switzerland, recuperating from a long and serious illness. Captain Gray is thought to be in London.

Mrs. Furness is calling a dozen witnesses, including Peggy, in an attempt to disprove her husband's charges. Mr. and Mrs. Furness are prominent in London Society.

Peggy, who has taken a six-year lease on a London apartment, will go to Paris this week end, returning in a fortnight. She plans to go on the London stage in the Autumn in an American musical comedy. She says that the whole of her husband's estate reverted to the members of his immediate family.

LOBSTERMEN IN ICE PACK OFF NAHANT

Three small lobster dories with two men in each are frozen fast near the outer edge of a field of ice a mile and a half off Nahant.

The plight of the men and boats became known today. The coast guard station at Nahant sent men out in a boat through a channel to the vicinity of the frozen boats. The coastguardmen offered to bring the lobstermen back to shore but the latter declined to leave their boats and gear.

The coastguard boat was not heavy enough to break a passage through for the ice-gripped lobster dories and the Nahant station communicated with coastguard headquarters in Boston which asked Point Allerton coastguard station at Hull to send its heavy power boat over the eight miles to the trapped boats.

Point Allerton station prepared to do this. There is risk that, if the ice breaks, the trapped boats and men will be carried out to sea.

BROOKLINE BOY HEIR TO RICHES

Leo H. Leary, Jr., Gets Largest Share in $11,000,000 Estate of Grandmother

The young son of Leo H. Leary, yachtsman and Harvard football coach, a resident of Brookline, is chief beneficiary in the $11,000,000 estate of his maternal grandmother.

This was revealed in the will of Mrs. Mary A. McElroy, daughter of Joseph Banigan, the late "Rubber King," of Providence and Narragansett Pier.

The will provides the residuary estate shall be divided into two parts and one held in trust until Leo H. Leary, Jr., becomes twenty-five years old, when it goes to him.

RELATIVES BENEFIT.

From the other part of the trust, Robert H. B. McElroy and John H. McElroy, sons of the testatrix, receive $24,000 each annually, and Mrs. Margaret M. M. Blair of Bayside, L. I., a daughter, receives $3,000 annually until the trust terminates.

From his part of the trust the grandson gets $3,000 annually for support and education. In the event of his death, provision is made for distribution. Leo Leary, Sr., father of the young heir, declared that he knew nothing about the will and had no information about his son's good fortune.

MARRIED IN 1916.

The Leary-McElroy nuptials in 1916 were the social event of that year in Providence. Alice McElroy, the bride, was one of the most popular girls in the younger social set there. Her death of pneumonia two years later was a sudden shock to many acquaintances. She was survived by a baby boy, the heir apparent.

On his father's side, the Leary boy is a relative of Cardinal O'Connell.

CLEARED OF PLOT TO KILL HUSBAND

Detroit, Feb 21.—A jury acquitted Mrs. May B. Ford of a charge of conspiracy to kill her husband, Ney J. Ford, a wealthy farmer. The verdict was returned in less than half an hour. The only defence raised, by counsel for the woman was whether an overt act had been committed. The jurors decided that Mrs. Ford was not to be held responsible for any alleged plot whereby her husband was to be slain at his home, and the body was to be burned in a barn.

TAILOR IS TIED AND ROBBED

Bandits Beat Up South End Man; Second Hold-Up Foiled

Two South End tailors were held up by thugs who entered their establishments and asked to be measured for suits of clothes.

One of the proprietors was brutally beaten, robbed of a sum of money and some clothing and left dying, bound to a chair.

The other turned the tables on the robbers by trapping them in his shop while he summoned the police.

ATTACKED FROM BEHIND.

Abraham Kofman, fifty years old, was about to close his tailor shop at No. 237 Dover street, when two men, one white and the other colored, entered and asked to be fitted for suits of clothes. The tailor took them to an inner room to comply. There the white man donned a suit. As he did so, the negro attacked Kofman from behind, striking him over the head several times with a flat iron.

Abraham Kofman.

Kofman made a feeble attempt to resist, but the white man also assailed him and the two beat him into unconsciousness. The thugs then tied their victim to a chair and proceeded to loot the establishment. They took $7 in cash, a fur coat, a black leather coat and a suit of clothes, and made their escape as they heard a customer enter the shop.

SKULL FRACTURED.

The latter loosed Kofman's bonds and summoned Patrolman Barney Keough. A search for the holdup men proved unavailing. Kofman was removed to the City Hospital, where he is in a dangerous condition. He is suffering from multiple lacerations of the scalp and face and it is feared he may have a fractured skull.

Kofman is married and lives with his family of four small children at No. 87 Ross street, South End. He furnished a good description of his assailants to the police. The white man, he said, is about five feet, nine inches tall, twenty-two years old, and weighed 160 pounds. He wore a dark coat and cap. The negro is twenty years old, five feet, four inches tall, and weighed 130 pounds. He wore a brown checkered mackinaw overcoat.

TAILOR FOILS THIEVES.

Max Fleichman, whose tailoring establishment is at No. 452 Shawmut avenue, South End, was visited by two would-be robbers about an hour before the Kofman holdup took place. The men, Fleichman told the police, entered his shop and asked to be measured for suits of clothes.

As he was about to comply, one of them asked him casually if he had much money. He replied in the negative, he said. Nevertheless they demanded that he give them what money he had. Instead of complying, the tailor said, he turned on them and attacked them with his yard-stick. Then he ran to the door and locked it.

BARES PLOT TO BOOST PRICES

Plenty on Hand in United States, Head of Big Refining Company Says

By Cosmopolitan News Service

New York, Feb. 21.—The public itself will be to blame if sugar prices go up, Earl D. Babst, president of the American Sugar Refining Company said today, following his return from Cuba.

"The supply of sugar in the United States is ample," he said. "The one thing, however, that as refiners, we cannot provide against a stampede by the public or the trade. Such action only plays into the hands of the speculators."

Mr. Babst's warning is too late. Sugar prices in Boston went to nine cents yesterday.

Officials of the largest grocery stores in Boston are advising their customers not to buy more than necessary for immediate use. Although they have placed no restrictions on the amount of sugar a customer may buy they say that excessive purchases may send prices sky-rocketing with results similar to those that existed two years ago.

The opening attraction under the new arrangement will be Gertrude Hoffman in a musical revue called "Hello Everybody," in which Miss Hoffman will appear at the head of a company of fifty people.

Under the new plan there will be two matinees only each week—on Wednesday and Saturday—and the scale of prices has been arranged on what is distinctly a "popular" basis, with a $1.50 top.

Other musical attractions will follow the Hoffman engagement.

ALDERMEN TRY TO GET COAL IN SOMERVILLE

The Somerville Board of Aldermen wants coal and not statistics. At a meeting of the board it was unanimously voted to request the Mayor to recommend an appropriation to cover a municipal purchase of coal for sale to needy residents, at cost price.

Alderman Harris, State and Representatives.

Another resolution was adopted demanding more action in gotting coal to Somerville. Copies of the resolutions were sent to Senators

These resolutions were offered by Alderman Robert O. Harris.

In recognition of his service to the city in bringing to the attention of Fuel Administrator alleged coal gouging, Patrolman Charles W. Reick was formally commended. Reick was instrumental in having a Somerville dealer haled into court and held in $1,300 for the grand jury for alleged irregularities in selling coal.

Patrolman Reick.

The aldermen also voted unanimously on a resolution offered by Alderman Harris, to urge the immediate cessation of operation of one-man cars in that city. A public hearing will be held on March 7. One-man cars were denounced as "detrimental to the convenience of our citizens and a serious handicap to traffic."

MATHEWSON, HERO OF BASEBALL, NEW HEAD OF THE BRAVES

GRANT SELLS BOSTON CLUB FOR $350,000

By NICK FLATLEY.

Boston fans cheered loudly today when they discovered that Christy Mathewson, one of baseball's most venerated heroes, had become the boss of the Boston Braves. The sale of the club was the most surprising bit of diamond news that has exploded hereabouts is more than a decade.

The price paid for the club was not announced by the new owners, nor by George Washington Grant, the retiring magnate, but it is believed to be just about $350,000 over and above the lease on the Braves Field property.

Baseball's greatest baseball plant is still the property of James E. Gaffney of New York, the builder, but the lease includes interest on bonds and the taking over of a number of bonds annually, so that the outfit becomes eventually the property of the ball club.

George Grant, who bought the club from P. D. Haughton and his associates four years ago, paid something like $225,000, and took over the outstanding indebtedness. In four years here he netted a profit of something like $75,000. And this, with the gain on the selling price makes it a perfectly fine business proposition for the owner of the famous brown derby.

Grant made himself solid with the fans here, who believed he was really trying to build up a ball club. But he wasn't a baseball man originally, and he had New York business connections that prevented his becoming a typical Boston owner.

With "Matty" it's altogether different. He made his fame in New York, of course. He was baseball's greatest pitcher as a Giant. He has lived always in New York State. But to the game itself, to the fan in general, he's an essential part of baseball, the universal hero.

Matty an Essential Part, a Universal Hero

What Lincoln is to the country, Matty is to baseball, as Emil E. Fuchs, the new vice-president expresses it. Big Six, just recovered from a two-year battle with tuberculosis, is the idol of every kid that saves his pennies to buy a dime bat. He's the model that a thousand and one young pitchers shoot at.

You might accept the length and breadth of the land and not find an individual who could even come close to the great old pitcher in the very necessary matter of popularity. The new owners stepped off on the right foot when they made "Christy" the leader of their baseball venture.

President Mathewson has bought a big share of the club stock. So has Emil E. Fuchs, New York attorney and former city magistrate, who was on the bench in Gotham with Judge McQuade, now vice-president of the Giants. Another of the new owners is James McDonough, director in several New York and Boston banks.

The rest of the directorate will be Boston business men, some four of them having agreed to take over part of the club, and help make it a real Boston proposition. The names will be announced before the end of the week.

Change, Though Startling, Will Help Game Here

The change, though startling, cannot but help the game here. The Braves finished last a year ago after a terrible string of accidents. One of the first things Matty, the new president, offered to do was to bet anything reasonable that the team wouldn't be last this season.

He knows baseball, naturally; has tried all angles of it, and one of the first things he decided upon the matter of taking over the club was put up to him was to keep Fred Mitchell on the job as manager.

"Ever since I had to quit the game," he explains, "I have wanted to get back. Some time ago my doctors assured me that I had recovered sufficiently to get busy again. But I thought that managing would be too strenuous. The strain might hurt me. I figured on buying into a minor league proposition, but when the Braves offer came, I was more than glad to snap it up. It will not interfere with the playing end. Mitch can have that. He showed me enough in '18, when I was managing the Reds and he had the champion Cubs, to know that he was as good as anybody in the game.

Matty's Program Seems a Sensible One

"He has had hard luck here, but a change is due. And we expect to put through a trade shortly that will really help the club. And it will not be with New York, either."

That's Matty's platform, in his new role as manager, and a mighty sensible one it seems to be. He can talk the game part all around the other magnates, has the respect of the managers, and takes over his job with plenty of financial backing. George Grant earned the reputation of being one of the game's shrewdest traders, but Big Six is fitted by experience and nature to go him quite a few better.

Matty expects to go South while the Braves are at St. Petersburg, though he isn't at all sure about it. His family is now at Saranac, where his son is attending school, and he may not be able to shift before the season opens. But after that, he intends to make Bottonsbia homo. He has seen enough of the game to know that a popular magnate has to register steadily somewhere near his own baseball orchard.

George Grant Sorry to Say Farewell to Boston

President George Grant, retiring as Brave magnate, wasn't any too happy, even though he admitted tucking a good profit in his pocket. He liked Boston, and was really ambitious to have a winning team here, as he found Braves Field fans just as pop-eyed about the game as he was himself. But he just had to put business above sentiment.

"If the people of Boston that I have met think as much of me, as I do of them, I should be the happiest man in the world," was his farewell remark. "I am leaving my interests here with much regret, as I have always been received very cordially and leave behind many friends. I have always been a fan, 100 per cent, and I don't believe I will ever change. If I do come back to the game, I hope it will be in Boston."

Fuchs Will Be Personal Representative of Interests

Attorney Emil Fuchs, who will be the principal representative of the money interest in the club, was former deputy Attorney General of New York, as well as magistrate. He gave up all official attachments three years ago, preferring to conduct a very lucrative private practice.

According to his own admission, he first thought of buying the Braves a year ago. He is a close personal friend of Jim Gaffney and we haven't any doubt he gathered the idea from the shrewd James who cleaned up plenty in his short career as a mag here. But the matter never took actual form until after the league meetings last December.

Then the prospective buyers decided that there was money in the Braves. All they needed was a baseball man as a leader. After looking the field over they picked Matty. That was three weeks ago. He jumped at the proposition.

Grant Said He Would Sell at His Price

Grant was approached and said he would sell, at his price. He named it and never changed. Two weeks of negotiations ended yesterday afternoon, after an all-day conference at Braves Field. According to August Dreyer, Grant's personal attorney, the deal was in doubt up to the minute the last document was signed about an hour before the new owners and the retiring magnate staged a dinner at the Copley-Plaza.

Everything was finally arranged to the complete satisfaction of both sides. Eddie Riley, one of baseball's most efficient business managers, will be retained, as will the entire Braves Field office staff. Plans for the coming season, settled by Grant, will go "as is." The new owners admitted that they were more than surprised at the businesslike way things were run at the Wigwam.

George Washington will live on the profits for a while. He has had his share of worry in the past few years, and intends to rest for a time and erase the wrinkles from his brow. He will take a trip South with Mrs. Grant, whose health has been poor, and will probably visit the club at St. Pete.

Has Nothing But Praise for Boston.

He wished Boston fans a sincere and hearty farewell, and had nothing but the highest praise for the treatment he collected during his heetic quarter of seasons in our midst. He also intimated that selling the ball club didn't mean his ultimate retirement from baseball. He's a double dyed fan, and after he rests up a bit, it's a cinch he'll be back in there somewhere.

Christy Mathewson, new president, saw his first big league ball play Cleveland. He saw some real pitching that day, for Kid Nichols opposed Cy Young. Paying seventy-five cents and getting right down back of the screen gave him his greatest baseball thrill, he admits.

Was Hero for the Giants from the Start.

After a more or less unsuccessful season in the little old N. E. circuit, he was grabbed by the Giants and was a hero, almost from the first time, he stepped into the box. He had a string of gloriously successful seasons while the Giants were winning their pennants in the first decade of the century, and practically all the old-timers who saw him at his best admit that he never had a peer in the box. Perhaps his greatest stunt was three shutout games against the Athletics in the World's Series of 1905.

He was undoubtedly the greatest ten town hall...

single factor in establishing McGraw as a great baseball manager. He was a wonderfully built athlete in his heyday, who could work every other day or so and retain his effectiveness. Over a stretch of a dozen years he mowed down all opposition.

He had wonderful speed, a great curve, perfect control, and to make things more intricate, he developed a change of pace, and the fadeaway, the most famous of all baseball deliveries. Some pitchers have been his equal in one or two of the essentials of the art, but nobody ever brought his combination of stuff onto the mound.

Took Over Job as Reds' Manager in 1910.

Matty, who is forty-three years of age, lost his effectiveness in '15, and the next year he took over the job of managing the Cincinnati Reds, at that time one of baseball's hard clubs. He had a couple of tempestuous years there, and late in '17 joined the service, going to France as an officer in the chemical gas branch. He attained the rank of captain.

After the armistice he was held in France too long to start the season as Red manager, and when he finally did get back, McGraw of the Giants signed him as assistant manager, announcing that he was grooming him to take charge of the Polo Grounds team. But that Winter he suffered a bad cold, which developed into tuberculosis, and he was sent to Saranac, with hardly a chance for life. But the old spirit that saw him through some of baseball's toughest battles defeated the dread illness, and now he's back apparently as hale and hearty as ever he was.

And best of all, he seems to be tickled to death with his new job. Which makes it unanimous.

Judge Fuchs Known as New York's Lindsay

Judge Emil E. Fuchs, new vice-president of the Boston Braves, was known as New York's "Ben Lindsay," while he acted as a city magistrate there. He was a firm believer in moral suasion—held that helping a criminal was always better than sending him up the river for a stretch, as the expression is. He maintained that most of the petty criminals, especially the minors, turned to crime because they had nothing to do.

So he made it a point to dig up jobs for the unfortunates who were haled into his court. In the course of two years, he had more than 800 "reformed desperadoes" reporting to him monthly, the whole lot of them happy and working.

And he dug up jobs personally for more than 200 of them. As he naively admits, he didn't get much boosting for it, because he didn't believe in giving out interviews.

TIMEFORMATBOUT IS 75 MINUTES

Tomorow night at the Grand Opera House one of the big wrestling treats of the season will take place when George Calza, the champion Italian wrestler, will take on Stanley Stasiak, the Polish giant, in a handicap match. This match is limited to seventy-five minutes. This it will eliminate all stalling tactics from the struggle. Stasiak to win must beat Calza one fall in the seventy-five minutes. This will make the giant Pole go at top speed from the call of time to get a fall.

George Kotsonaras

When told that Calza expected to win a fall himself in less than forty minutes and that he wanted the match to be strictly legitimate and devoid of all rough tactics Stasiak laughed.

"That Italian will never throw me in a year and I intend to show him some real wrestling of the kind that will make him crawl through the ropes. I know just what it takes to beat this fellow and I shall start handing it to him when the bell rings and never quit until I have him pinned."

Calza realizes that he is in for a tough evening, but isn't worrying over the result of the match. He has agreed to meet the giant Pole where Zbyszko and Lewis both refused.

A report has been current for some time that Renati Gardini was to be the new manager of Calza. In a signed statement given out yesterday Calza states that John Perelli is his manager.

George Kotsonaras, the Greek champion, will meet Peter Goulette the French light heavy in a finish match, and Joe Porelli, the Italian middleweight, will meet a tough customer in Eddie Boylen, the Swedish middleweight.

SANTOSUOSSO LEADS B. U. BOXING TEAM

Frank Santosuosso has been elected captain of the Boston University boxing team which will go to New Haven to compete with Yale.

After a series of elimination bouts, six men have been selected to represent Boston University in the 115, 125, 135, 145, 158 and 175 classes.

Captain Santosuosso, who is a Law School senior, will be the representative in the 158 class. "Spike" Carlson, last year's football quarterback, won out over Jack Wilson for the 175 class. He is a College of Business Administration student.

A. J. Gaglioti, the runner-up in the New England championship last year, will be in the 145 class, and Joseph Gorrual of Woburn is in the 125 class. The other men to go are Harold Damon, 135 class, and Richard Smith in the 115. Smith defeated Yaglian of the Law School in the elimination bouts.

HARVARD-YALE TEAMS TO SAIL JUNE 30

The Harvard-Yale international meet with Cambridge and Oxford will be held on July 21, near London, probably at the Wembley Stadium.

The Harvard-Yale team will sail from New York on the America. The men to make up the party of about twenty athletes will not be decided until some time in June. The coaches will select the members of their particular teams, and some time within the next few months the graduate advisory track committees will come to a mutual understanding on many other points connected with the preliminary details for the meet.

Fight Results

Tommy Noe defeated Johnny Rose, 10 rounds, at Armory A. A.

At Philadelphia—Panche Villa knocked out Kid Wolfe, three rounds.

HERLFORD IS WINNER IN FEATURE MAT BOUT

Rockwell Hereford of Technology, in the 160-pound class at the New England A. A. A. U. wrestling championships last night in the Cambridge Y. M. C. A., defeated a national titlist, Emil Wolf of Manchester (N. H.) Y. M. C. A. in a spectacular bout.

Hereford got a half nelson on Wolf and hurled his shoulder to the mat after 13 minutes and 2 seconds. It was the feature bout.

Johnny Spellman, the Brown football player, winner of the 192-pound class in last year's championships, took the heavyweight crown from another collegian, Roger Flanders, a former Norwich University football leader. The bout was the final of the night and went the limit.

Harry Brunner, another Technology entrant, and George Myerson of the Boston Y. M. C. A., were other champions who repeated. Brunner won the 118-pound class and Myerson led the 147-pound class.

Seventy-three bouts were staged and most of them went to a decision. Seldom have the classes been better filled and seldom has better wrestling been uncovered.

Louis M. Groppuso of the Boston Y. M. C. U. won the 112-pound title after a bitter fight with J. F. Basgoul of the Hall River "Y." Brunner's opponent in the 118-pound class was Robert S. Means of Clapp Memorial.

U. E. Noponen of the Hurja A. C. took the honors in the 126-pound division. Ernest Supremant of the Attleboro "Y" was runner up. George Zimmerman of Springfield College is king of the 135-pound class. He licked Frans Shairer of the Boston Y. M. C. U. M. Shuman of the Boston Y. M. C. U. defeated O. D. Marchesonie of Jamaica Plain for the 178-pound honors, which completes the list.

PANCHO KNOCKS OUT WOLF IN THIRD

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 21.—Kid Wolf, Quaker City flyweight, lasted two rounds, two minutes and three seconds of his scheduled eight-round bout with Pancho Villa, the American champion, at the Arena.

Shortly after hostilities broke in the third round Wolf went to the mat with a brace of rights and lefts. As the count struck five the Kid struggled to his feet and an instant later hit the floor again.

As he got up, helpless, the Filipino uncorked a flailiike right, and sent the Kid down and out.

In the initial round, before Wolf had a chance to display his wares, Villa sent him down with a terrific right for the count of nine.

JOIE RAY HOPES FOR REAL COMPETITION IN BOSTON MILE

ANXIOUS TO ADD A NEW RECORD TO HIS LIST

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Joie Ray hopes he will be provided with real competition by those who, with him, are listed as starters in the City of Boston Mile, at the American Legion games, in the East Armory, tomorrow afternoon.

Walter Higgins

Joie, who has been lowering his own or other's world's distance records almost every week this season, is anxious to add a new one-mile record to the collection, and believes, should he receive the right competition and early pace, that his time for doing is tomorrow afternoon.

Joie will have as his opponents in the big event Bob Brown, former Intercollegiate two-mile and cross-country champion; Walter Higgins of Columbia, an excellent distance performer; Elmer Sanborn of Tech, the New England intercollegiate one-mile champion; Francis Merriam, an able miler from Boston University, and possibly Pat Mahoney, whose recent performance of note was the capturing of the "Casey" mile at the annual K. of C. meet.

None of the five has shown the time Ray can make for the distance and it would go down a real upset if any of them led the fleet Chicago man to the tape. But all of their number are capable of setting a mighty fast clip for three-quarters of the distance and if they choose to do so and Joie can follow that speedy three-quarters with one of his usual finishes a new record would be the natural outcome.

In striving for this new mark Joie is taking quite an undertaking for tonight he is competing in a special 1,000-meter run at the George town University games in Washington and last ride all night to reach this city in time to participate in the City of Boston Mile.

Disappointment is expressed by all who plan to attend the meet at the inability of Jake Driscoll to appear in the Boston 600-yard run. Jake will be in New York, running anchor for the B. A. A. relay quartet in the New York A. O. games. His failure to show will instal Walter Koppish, the Columbia football and track captain as the favorite. Koppish will be remembered as the runner who finished only inches behind Driscoll and Bill Stevenson, the former Princetonian, in the last Intercollegiate A. A. A. meet, and who was not awarded his justly-earned place by the judges. Koppish travelled the quarter-mile in 48 4-5 seconds while a schoolboy, and may produce a new 600-yard mark tomorrow afternoon.

Excellent fields of contestants will report for every event on the Legion program, and several particularly thrilling relay events are among the list. The most recent relay duel to be arranged involves B. U. and Wil liams and as Williams recently de feated the speedy Dowdein outfit, a real race is the prediction when it trots against B. U.

NEE IS WINNER OF ARMORY FEATURE

Tommy Nee of South Boston received a gift decision over Johnny Rose of New York in the feature bout of the Armory A. A. show at the Grand Opera House. The decision was greeted with hoots of derision and considerable booing by the unusually small gathering of fans that witnessed the bouts.

Nee scored a knockdown in the second round, but the New York boy was up again in a flash, only to hear the bell ring for the finish of the round. It was that blow that caused an injury to Nee's right hand. Thereafter Tommy used the injured member only for protection.

Had he not injured his hand Nee would probably have beaten Rose, but as it was, Rose was outlfied to the extent that the New York boy assumed the role of aggressor throughout the melee, and uncorked a brand of infighting that astonished the fans.

Jimmy Manning of South Boston defeated Doddy O'Neil of Manchester, N. H., in the semi final, an eight-session affair. These two boys stood toe to toe and slugged with might and main. Manning, however, had an advantage over the boy from the Pine Tree State as he continually kept his left in O'Neil's face. Doddy fought gamely and took everything the Peninsula boy had to offer. Manning's left hand offset O'Neil's advantage, which he gained by his heavy punching.

Jimmy Smith of Brockton disposed of Scotty Welch of Roxbury in an eight session affair. It was a slam bang affair all the way through, with both boys assimilating and giving a lot of punishment. Welch sent the Brockton boy to the canvas in the third stanza. Smith took advantage of the count of nine to shake off the dizziness which had resulted from the blow.

The bell rang for the end of the round at this juncture, thus putting an end to whatever ambitions Welch had of knocking the Brockton youth out of the picture. Smith came back strong in the latter part of the fight, and piled up enough points to overcome Welch's lead and snatch the decision.

Spike Hennessey of Waltham scored a victory over Young McDonough in the curtain raiser. The Southie youth was unable to protect himself against the terrific onslaught of the Waltham boy, and Referee Jimmy Walsh intervened to save McDonough from further punishment.

YALE COACH HAS BEEN A LEADER

Robert J. Kiphuth

Robert J. Kip buth, coach of the champion Yale swimming team, has been a leader in his particular sport for many years. Coach Kiphuth has developed winning swimmers at Yale for the last six years, and has turned out another champion team this season. The Yale boys trimmed the University of Pennsylvania Mermen in a dual meet at Philadelphia. Their slate is clean with five straight victories.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY ENTERS WOODWARD

Captain Woodward of the Boston University track team will compete in the Legion games. He will enter the fifty-yard dash with John McDonald, Harry Sampsack, Maurice Finn, Al Richards and John Kochejian.

AMATEUR BOXERS IN B. A. A. BOUTS

Great interest is being manifested in the B. A. A. sparring tournament at the club house this evening. Practically all of the best amateurs in Boston and vicinity will be seen in competition. The following classes will be contested: 112, 118, 126, 135 and 147 pounds classes.

All of the classes have been filling in fine style and indications point to the show being one of the best conducted by the Unicorn Club in a long while.

WARD ASSERTS SHADE STOLE HIS THUNDER

By RINGSIDE.

Look's like a row is starting.

"I'll give $75,000."

"I'll give $30,000."

Sounds like an auction sale of King Tut's most treasured trinkets, but don't be mistaken.

They're merely offers that have been made to fighters.

And then to follow what already has come to pass comes the complaint.

Not original. It's my thunder they're using. How do they get that way?

Dave Shade, the sensational almost-champion of the welterweight ranks, made known an offer of a $35,000 purse to Champion Johnny Wilson if the king of the middleweights would agree to meet Shade in a title contest.

The next day Georgie Ward of Elizabeth, N. J., likewise an almost champion in the same weight division with Shade, vociferously broadcasts that Shade had rewritten an offer Ward already had announced and was getting away with his thunder.

Dave Shade

Both Shade and Ward have climbed the ladder to welterweight fame the past couple of seasons. Mickey Walker beat them to a battle with Jack Britton and became champion.

Since the coronation of the new king took place, both Shade and Ward have been trying to get Mickey into a decision battle that they might have a whack at the mighty dented tin. Mickey has shown most decided signs of being both deaf and dumb on the subject.

Ward Says Shade Must Beat Him First

Ward a smart young man of the newer generation of squared circle gladiators decided to challenge the champion in a different way.

He proclaimed to the world at large, Mickey Walker in particular, that he is willing to hand over the sum of $30,000 if Walker would enter into a championship fight with him, without regard to the size of the gate the mill would attract.

Then when Ward sat back and awaited the results of his campaign via the big guarantee way, he picked up a paper and saw that Shade offered Wilson $35,000 for a battle for the middleweight title.

George Declares Dave Must Be a Welter

Inasmuch as Shade has agreed to meet Ward Tuesday night in a welterweight contest, Ward feels sure that Shade is a welter. Why he should invade the higher weight division before he has entirely conquered his own class he cannot understand.

Ward is peeved, not only because Shade has become appropriated, but at what he considered an affront Shade made by so lightly skipping over him and seeking a Wilson match.

Let Shade first get a referee's decision over me before he goes after the middleweights," is the Ward ultimatum.

ARENA PUTS ON HARVARD AND DARTMOUTH

Tonight's the night for Dartmouth hockey enthusiasts.

At the Arena the followers of the Green will see for the first time this season Leon Tuck's hockey septet in action, and as its opponent will be Harvard, the interest in the game can be readily estimated.

Each team has suffered a single defeat. Dartmouth bowed to West Point, 1 to 0, and Harvard lost to Princeton in the opening contest of their two out of three hockey arrangement, and each is out for victory tonight, for the team also wins, providing it continues its winning record, will have a strong claim for top hockey honors.

The game starts Harvard on an all important week in hockey, for after facing the Green tonight the Crimson must get ready for a fray to Princeton where it is scheduled to tackle the Tigers on Saturday evening. Harvard having suffered its only defeat in the opening game of its Princeton series naturally is keen to trounce the Tigers, yet it can ill afford to ease up in tonight's contest.

SOMERVILLE SHUTS OUT ARLINGTON SIX

Arlington was shut out by Somerville, 1 to 0, in a Greater Boston Interscholastic Hockey league game in the second period, McFadden, left defence for Somerville, picked the puck out of a scrimmage in front of the Arlington goal and drove it past Bott, the Arlington goal tender, into the opposing net for the only count of the game.

VEEDER CREATED A NEW RECORD

Melvin W., Veeder of Chicago, of the Yale swimming team, created a new intercollegiate record for the 200-yard breast stroke event in the dual meet with the University of Pennsylvania team at Philadelphia on February 17.

Melvin W. Veeder

Veeder covered the distance in 2 minutes, 18-5 seconds and bettered the previous record by a fifth of a second. The Yale team won the meet. It was their fifth consecutive victory in the Intercollegiate swimming leagues.

CORNELL HAS FAST MAN IN CROZIER

Cornell is rated to have a poor chance to lead Harvard and Dartmouth in the fifth annual triangular meet at Mechanics Building Saturday, but Jack Mooney probably will spring a few surprises. One strong possibility in the 1,000-yard run is G. D. Crozier, all the way from Honolulu, who runs the half-mile and has an ideal physique for a distance man.

Y SECTIONAL MEETS HELD ON MARCH 10

Sectional meets, in preparation for the championships of the Two State 1,000-point athletic competition now in progress at Y. M. C. A.'s in Massachusetts and Rhode Island, will be held March 10 at Boston, J. Sinnett and E. E. Lord, supervisors. North Adams, Lawrence, Providence, Springfield and Worcester.

The events will be: 40-yard dash, 300-yard run, 1,000-yard run, shot put, running high jump, three standing broad jumps, potato race and relay races.

The championships of the Two State competition will be held at the Huntington avenue building of the Boston Y on March 17.

BRAE BURN HOLDS CARNIVAL TONIGHT

Brae Burn Country Club will be the scene of an ice carnival tonight when the Newton Y. W. C. A. will entertain the Boston "Y" girls on the club rink. There will be competitive sports between the two groups.

A hockey game between the Hub girls and Newton will be a special feature. Dorothy Snook, a prominent member of the Blue Triangle Athletic Association will captain the Boston team.

Willie Gradwell Wins

Providence, R. I., Feb. 11.—Willie Gradwell of Boston won the decision in a ten-round bout with Mickey Donley of Newark.

Frequent outbursts of booing by disapproving fans marked the fight. Seven rounds were credited to Gradwell.

"Try To Hit It" The BULLSEYE By NICK FRATLEY

BASEBALL magnates now emitting annual yelp about holdouts.

They are the birds who think that eight thousand bucks isn't any salary at all for spending a pleasant Summer. The boys who do the screeching could make an eighth of that any other way, but that means nothing in their young lives.

The mugs utter heart rending wails about the high cost of paying income tax and the wear and tear on turnstiles; declare they will never give in, and then come through the day before the season starts. In that way they save the expense of taking the protesting mate on a Spring trip, which we have often thought is one of their reasons for laying off the...

Come Across

...customary surrender so long ago. Only the star ball players hold out, so we have not been bothered with the holdouts of Boston and Chicago.

Another good catch to tack for a big league salary gets it in New York. Anybody who knows he isn't worth price they pay in large cities is dying to flourish from there. And that's the way it goes. Fans used to spend the Winter talking letters about ball clubs. Now they don't even spend two cents for a stamp for a single screed. Shows what they think of it. Babe Ruth used to be the greatest of the holdouts. He's original, and now he goes to camp weeks ahead of anybody else. And we bet the club pays the freight for him, too.

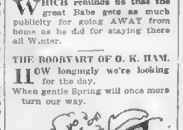
THE flappers are getting roundshouldered, according to the usually observant Contrary Mary, from the weight of the ear rings that are now the mode.

WHICH reminds us that the great Babe gets as much publicity for going AWAY from home as he did for staying there all Winter.

THE BOOBY ART OF O. K. HAM.

HOW longingly we're looking for the day.

When gentle Spring will once more turn our way.



We'll swap our trusty shovel for a rake,

And plant the yard with blossoms blithe and gay.

(To be continued.)

WHERE to listen in tonight!

2.—The dumb waiter.

3.—The furnace registers (if you live in a three-flatter).

4.—At home, while your wife, as usual, does the talking.

ELKS BENEFIT BY CASINO SHOW

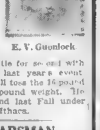
The Elks suffered a great loss when their home was burned, and if they rebuild they will need the assistance of all their friends.

One of the best shows of the season in the East. There are five eight-round bouts for the Elks and their friends. Several on the card have appeared in feature bouts at the different Massachusetts clubs. The bouts are paired as follows: Punch O'Neil, Lynn, vs. Barney Trey, Boston; Young Kennedy, Derry, vs. Steve Adams, Chicago; Johnny Corbett, Chicopee, vs. Kid Lee, Lynn; Tip Top Zorelli, Boston, vs. Ruby Levine, Lewiston; Johnny Fox, Woburn, vs. Frankie Ryan, Everett.

An army of lodges of Elks will send delegations.

GOUINLOCK HEAVY FOR POLE VAULT

Distinguished in Cornell's successful gridiron campaign, E. V. Goulinlock of Warsaw, N. Y., has turned his attention to pole-vaulting and weight throwing and is expected to figure prominently in Saturday's Cornell-Dartmouth-Harvard meet at Mechanics Building.



E. V. Guonlock

He is unusual by heavy for a vaulter, but flopped over the bar at 12 feet to tie for second with Harfy Davis in last year's event. Goulinlock also will toss the 16-pound shot and the 35-pound weight. He was a varsity end last Fall under Coach Dobbs at Ithaca.

NO man can be said to be truly wedded until he begins ask ing his friends to recommend him to a good lodge or club he can join

A benedict tries to interrupt his wife when she begins to talk. The veteran leisurely takes out his pipe prepared to listen for a few hours

Because most women welcome their husbands home with a recital of the day's woes is no sign that they are concert singers

It is when a girl agrees with a man in everything and concedes that he is the brainiest boy in the world that she is most dangerous.

Perhaps delicatessen stores were invented by a man who had to eat the things his bride cooked for him.

Once upon a time there was a young man who had a fat and ugly wife, which prevented him from marrying the girl he loved. One day, when they were out walking, his wife fell into a river It looked as if she would drown until a fisherman swam out and saved her. Tears of gratitude fell from the young man's eyes as the fisherman brought his wife back to him He grasped the hero warmly by the hand and reaching into his pocket gave him five thousand dollars as a reward.

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

A woman I know sued his wife for divorce the other day because he was tired of looking at her. If this were grounds for divorce, a lot of wives would be giving their husbands the air

WHEN you get a look at some of the men women marry you don't have to go to the theaters to find out whether tragedy exists.

SOME women like pain husbands and a lot of them couldn't be any happier than they are

YOU can't help but wonder why those girls don't look before they leap

BUT most of them leap and look afterwards

A LOT of girls get married to get away from home, but some of them find they have to work harder to make both ends meet

ONE guy got up in court and told how he was a good looking fellow. The judge fined him for committing perjury

HIS wife told the judge that she had waited six months before deciding to divorce him. The judge took one look at the guy and then asked the wife what had decided her

HE had a face that only a father could love, but he's father was dead

THE old man probably committed suicide the day he son was born

SHE told the judge that she had fallen in love with her husband's picture. He told her it would be right for reading the funny papers

BUT the defendant had a kind face. The kind you or anybody else wouldn't want.

IT had a tired look on it. He had probably been standing in front of a mirror

THE wife defended herself by saying that she met him on a dark day and married him at night

BUT she realized her mistake as soon as it got light

THE guy told the court that he was the perfect image of his father who had died three years ago. The judge warned him not to speak disrespectfully of the dead

THEN the judge asked the wife if her husband ever treated her cruelly. She said "no, he's home all the time." But the judge decided that with a face like he, that was cruelty enough.

BUT if a woman has a husband who is good to her, but homely, the only way she can get rid of him legally is to kill him and then she files for divorce on the grounds of desertion

THE BUDGET FRAME OF MIND

You know you should make a budget, but you do not want the bother

You say the money goes anyway and you do not spend more on luxuries than you should so what is the use of budge ting every week.

Well, if you won't make a budget why not adopt a plan a great many men are following today which by three saves worry

Figure what your taxes, your rent your insurance, your coal, your lights your lodge dues, telephone church subscriptions, civic organization dues, are for one year and divide by fifty-two setting aside each week a sum sufficient to meet these debts when they become due

It is a good way to get into the saving habit.

It makes it possible to meet some set expenses without worry

It saves you the misery of wondering what you can make two weeks' wages or an expense equal three weeks' salary

It is a good way to get yourself a little budget frame of mind

You may have to take an interest from some account but you get it back and I never did find you will have your habits changed and chance are by the time you have paid your debts you will make your own account well.

THE ENEMIES OF WOMEN By BLASCO IBANEZ

A Russian Prince of Fabulous Wealth and Some Friends Bind Themselves to Bar All Women From Lives

Prince Michael intercepts Spadoni in the Casino grounds

THE STORY TO DATE

Prince Michael Fedor, a Russian of fabulous wealth, is at Monte Carlo while the great war is on. With him is his friend, Atilio Castro, and other acquaintances. The prince, on returning to Villa Sirena, finds everything changed owing to the war. He announces to the amazement of his hearers, that he is ruined. Castro smilingly remarks that he would be content with one-tenth of the remains. The Prince proposes that Castro and a few of their friends live together with the proviso that no women shall enter their lives. They will be known as "The Enemies of Women." Castro tells the Prince he has seen the Duchess de Delille. The Prince says he will not receive her. The story reverts to the marriage of the Prince's father and mother and the son's early raising. His father dies and his mother marries again. He hears his income will be cut off on account of the war, so he sells his yacht and retires to his villa at Monte Carlo.

By Vicente Blasco Ibanez,
Author of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and Other Novels of World Renown

THE motto which had figured for centuries on the Castro shield was an accurate summary of his character: "Tomorrow more revolutionary than today." For thirty years there had not been a successful or abortive insurrection in Spain in which this sombre-looking gentleman had not had a hand.

"A Real Don Quixote!" said Castro.

Over a discussion in a commitee meeting he had once fought a "comrade" laborer in Paris. No sooner had they crossed swords than the workman received a cut across the hand.

"It is quite just," said the wounded man, wiping away the blood. "The Marquis, who has been educated in the use of weapons, is under obligation to chop up an unskilled workingman."

What Might Have Been

Don Enrique turned pale at the irony, and, to restore equality and eliminate his traditional advantages, he raised his own sword and gave himself a terrible cut across the skull.

"I would like to have known my grandfather," Castro would say. "The only thing I'm sorry about is that he left us so poor; though his forefathers had done more than he to ruin us."

On days when Castro himself had lost, he was more prone to complain, recalling the immense estates of the Castro, gained in the conquests in America.

"Today there are large cities on the site of the fields given by the King to my forefathers. One of my remote ancestors grazed horses built a colonial country house where at the present time you will find gardens, monuments and big hotels. There were hundreds of millions of square yards; at a franc a yard, imagine, Michael! I would be richer than all the millionaires in the world. And I'm only a well-dressed beggar. Good God! Why didn't my ancestors keep their land, instead of devoting themselves to serving the King and the people? Why didn't they do like any peasant who keeps religiously what has been left him by his ancestors?"

Other evenings, seated in the loggia, the Prince listened to Novoa and gazed at the nocturnal scene of sea and sky. There was no light, save the veiled gleam from the distant drawing-room. The coast was dark. The silhouette of Monte Carlo stood out against the starry background, without a single dot of red. There were few street lights in the city, and, besides, the glass of those few was painted blue. The lamps on the stairway of the Casino were shrouded like those of a hearse.

The German submarine menace kept the whole principality in darkness, as well as the French coast. Only at the entrance to the harbor of Monaco the two octagonal towers kept on their summit a red and a green beacon, which threw out over the waters a shifting path of rubies, and another of emeralds.

The Poetry of Space.

In the darkness, standing and looking at the stars, Novoa talked about the poetry of space, about distances and calculations which make one dizzy at the mere thought. It was impossible for Spadoni to follow his talk with the same attention as the Prince and Castro. What did the so-called tri-colored star matter to him? The millions and millions of leagues that the scientist spoke of merely made him yawn, and through an association of ideas he became absorbed in gambling mentally, imagining that he (Spadoni) were winning fifty times in succession, doubling each time.

He wagered a simple five-franc piece—the smallest bet allowed at the Casino—and at the end of the twenty-fifty bet he stopped as though horror-struck. He had won thirty-three million and a half dollars—more than a hundred and sixty-seven million francs. In only twenty-five minutes!

The Casino was closing its doors, declaring the bank was broken, but this was not enough to bring him out of his dream.

The marvelous five-franc piece remained on the green cloth beside a mountain of money which kept growing and growing. He must finish the fifty bets, always doubling. He continued for five more times and then stopped. He had already won something over a thousand and seventy-three millions of dollars; more than five thousand million francs. They would have to hand over the entire Principality of Monaco to him, and even that would not be enough, perhaps, to pay the debt.

The thirty-fifth time the simple "napoleon" had become thirty-four thousand million dollars; a hundred and seventy-five billions of francs. They wouldn't pay him; he was sure of that. It would be necessary for all the great powers of Europe to ally themselves as though for a great war, and even then, perhaps, he, the pianist, Teofilo Spadoni, would not accept the credit they might offer him.

In a Maze

He could no longer make the calculations mentally. The twentieth time he had been obliged to have recourse to the pencil which he used in the Casino to note results of the various plays.

Five million million francs. Decidedly, neither Europe nor the entire world would be able to pay him. The nations would have to put themselves up for sale the globe would be put on public auction, the women would have to sell their bodies and give him the proceeds; and even so it would be necessary to ask him for several thousands of years in which to pay the debt to him, the creditor of the universe, seated here on his piano stool as though on a throne.

Suddenly his attention was called by the silence in which the Prince and Castro were listening to Novoa, and he fixed his visionary gaze on the latter, his eyes still dazzled by the golden whirl of the vision.

Spadoni smiled disdainfully. If he were to put his money on the green table fifty time more, the figures obtained by astronomy would appear paltry and ridiculous beside the winnings obtained in an hour and forty minutes. God alone could be the banker, and pay the stars as though they were money; and who knows if God himself would be able to withstand the hundredth time the five-franc piece was wagered, always doubling, and if He would not have to declare the bank was broken?

One night, Atilio and Prince Michael Lubimoff were dining alone. The pianist had gone off to Nice with some English friends of his, who played poker in their landau. Novoa had been invited to dine with a colleague from the Museum and would not be back until midnight.

Like an Echo

That afternoon Michael had gone to the Casino to attend a classical concert, determined to face the obsequious curiosity of the employes and run the risk of coming across some of their former friends. From the outer stairway to the doors of the theatre head been obliged to reply to the series of deep bows from the various functionaries, some with military caps and gold buttons, others in solemn frock coats, stiff and dignified, like lawyers in a play.

The people who were passing through the parties noticed him immediately. "Prince Lubimoff!" They all remembered his yacht, his adventures and his parties, and repeated his name like the glorious echo of a resurrected past.

In the auditorium he looked for a seat where he would be entirely inconspicuous, the corner of a divan, close to the wall, but even here he was annoyed by the curiosity of the crowd.

YOUR BEAUTY

A NEW SERIES OF PRACTICAL VALUE

By Maria Jeritza,
(The Famous Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day.)

"THERE is no royal path which leads to geometry," was old Euclid told Ptolmey I. of Egypt, when he objected that there should be an easier way for kings to learn mathematics.

And it is equally true that there is no royal path to slim and graceful beauty. Activity of mind and body are essential. But after all, who wants the slothful care of laziness?

A beautiful figure is impossible to the woman whose muscles sag, distending her stomach and abdomen and whose hips are rounded beyond the natural curves of health. Even though she may try to conceal these defects by tight lacing instead of remedying them, a riding habit or a bathing suit will instantaneously reveal her sadly comic fatness.

If you faithfully follow the suggestions regarding exercises and posture made from time to time in these little chats of ours, you are now doubtless holding your neck and back erect, and so your stomach is correct in its position. But if due to habit of long standing you still find it hard to prevent your stomach muscles from sagging you may be glad to learn this exercise, which is designed to strengthen them and enable you to hold your stomach and abdomen easily erect.

It is an exercise much used in gymnasiums of girls' colleges, and its results are very valuable.

But just here a word of warning is needed. All exercises involving muscles of the stomach, back and abdomen should be taken moderately at first.

Do not, I beg of you, in your enthusiasm, try this exercise nine or ten times the first day. Once the first, second and even the third day will be sufficient if you would avoid stiffness and strain. Then increase the number very gradually to four, five and even six times daily.

Stretch yourself on your stomach on the floor with your feet straight together. Be sure that your hands and arms are in a comfortable position, palms down, for the object of the exercise is to lift yourself up from the floor, using your arms as levers, with all your weight on your hands and toes.

Hold your body, especially your stomach and abdominal muscles, stiffly straight. Raise yourself slowly, until your elbows are perfectly straight, with your waist still unbent and your entire weight supported on your hands and toes. Lower yourself to the floor in the same way.

You will be surprised and delighted to discover how quickly this exercise reduces superfluous fat on your abdomen and stomach to muscle, and what an improvement in your carriage results from its daily practice.

Maria Jeritza

In the next article Mme. Jeritza will tell of a simple way to keep the hips slender.

is found in a variety of shades. A room recently noted showed a particularly charming combination of gray-green enamel with draperies and accessories of gray and rose taffeta.

For the young girl's room, however, the ivory enamel with gay-colored chints is more suitable. The dressing table in the photograph is a good choice of an early French period, the fluting of the legs indicating the time of Louis XVI. The scarf is of chints to match the window draperies.

Question: Is it possible to get a small lostess refrigerator? Are they a success for small homes, or does their cost limit them to more pretentious places?—O. D. S.

Answer: By the lostess refrigerator you probably mean the electric refrigerator, in which the ice is manufactured by various processes. Its cost is not small, but it is offset by the ice bills in a comparatively short time. It can be set at freezing or below. It is a decided success.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

Be Sure to Read Them to Your Children

By Blanche Silver

Doris and the Wee Cork Boy

DORIS took the cork from her mother's hand and laid it on the table.

"Stay up there, you horrid thing, or Towser will eat you," she exclaimed.

"Oh, let him go ahead and chew me up if he wants to," laughed a merry, squeaky little voice; Doris almost screamed, it startled her so.

"Don't jump and run," pleaded the tiny voice. And the very cork Doris had placed on the table turned over and hopped up on its tiny little feet and danced over the top of the table. "Oh, dear! I'm so glad you can hear and understand me."

"Gracious!" cried Doris, coming closer to the table, and looking at the wee cork boy. "So am I glad that you can talk. Of all things! Where in the world did you come from? I never knew you could talk."

"Certainly you didn't know it," responded the wee cork boy. "For had you known it, I should have talked with you long ago. I've been dreadfully lonely. I think it's a shame to cage a fellow up in this old table-drawer all the time. Why, if I could get out I would have gone away from here a long time ago. It's certainly tiresome lying in this dark old drawer day in and day out."

"But how could I know you wanted to get out?" asked Doris. "I didn't know you could talk. I've never seen or heard of a cork-boy talking before."

"Because you don't know us," giggled Wee Cork Boy. "My! Back in Spain——"

"Spain!" Doris exclaimed. "Have you ever been in Spain?"

"Well, I guess I have been in Spain," replied Wee Cork Boy. "I should say I have. Why, I spent the greatest part of my life in the woods in Spain. Would you believe it, I lived in the woods there until after I was sixty years old? Well," he continued, sitting down on the edge of the kitchen table and crossing his funny little legs. "The tree that I was taken from was at least thirty years old before they stripped off the piece of bark from which I was made."

"Why, the idea!" laughed Doris, coming closer to Wee Cork Boy.

"So you grew on a tree?"

"Yes, I certainly did," replied Wee Cork Boy. "On a tree just about thirty feet high.

"Have You Been in Spain?"

"My, but it was a splendid-looking tree, with wide spreading branches and great strong trunk. The bark on that tree was thick, tough, elastic bark. You see, the bark keeps growing all the time—getting thicker and thicker. So they have to keep cutting it off. When the tree was just about fifteen years old the first bark was stripped off. It was used mostly for tanning and rough work. Then, in about eight years more, the tree was barked the second time. By then the bark was much finer and good enough for life preservers and buoys. After ten years more the bark was very fine and beautiful and brought a splendid price.

"That's where I came in. They used the bark at that clipping for corks. When I was taken away, my mother, she was told she would live to be at least a hundred years old. Think of that!"

"My goodness!" laughed Doris. "What a wonderful tree! And what do they do—just cut you off the tree?"

"Gracious, no!" replied Wee Cork Boy. "They have to heat and scorch the bark before I am made in this shape. Why——"

"Well, of all things!" exclaimed Doris. "I should think——"

"I'm sure we'll all be thinking," laughed her mother, who had just come into the room. "If you don't stop talking to yourself."

Doris laughed, slipped the little cork boy into her apron pocket and ran out to play.

ETIQUETTE POINTERS

—By Ann Adams—

DEAR MISS ADAMS:

Is it correct for a young lady to ask a young man to call after she has known him only a short time? My girl chum says the man should ask.

THIS is one of those situations where common sense must rule. If the girl likes the man and he has shown an interest in her, it is proper for her to ask him to call. Certainly it is in order for any girl to receive a man friend in her home.

DAILY HOROSCOPE

Mary Blake Says:

Today Lucky If You Are PRUDENT

TODAY is a day of all others when those born under Places must be more than careful and prudent.

Your nature is very sympathetic and you are susceptible, much more than the general run of people, to outside influences, be they good or bad.

This does not signify that you necessarily have a weak character, but it does mean that you are so generous hearted and so kindly disposed that, at times, it warps your judgment.

If you are tempted today to do something which your conscience tells you is not "according to Hoyle" call on your reserve strength and pass it up!

If on the other hand (and this is more likely to happen today to you) some subtle influence, or some real friend, or your own benevolent intuition, should suggest to you doing some good kind act, do not hesitate; go right ahead and do it.

Do not attempt today to do anything that is risky, or about the final result of which you are in doubt; your finate sense of what is right and what is wrong will guide you to distinguish between safety and risk, good and evil.

A little opposition on the part of others to the course you may map out for yourself today may prove of dubious benefit, for, no matter what you want to do, the slightest opposition will make you headstrong, and you will in spite of all obstacles persist in your course.

If what you have in view is safe or good the results will, of course, be satisfactory; if, on the other hand, it is risky or wrong the final accounting will end only in disaster. Your motto today should be "Safety First," with a resolution not to allow any generous impulse to be warped by ultra conservatism.

TELL THIS AT DINNER

When the judge discovered that the prisoner had no counsel, he ordered one present to act for him and did the shrewdest he could in the circumstances.

Thereupon the young counsel, who bore no great love for the judge, retired with the prisoner to an adjacent room for a brief consultation. Some time later an officer was sent to inform them that the court was waiting, but all the officer found was the counsel.

"Where is your client?" said the judge, when the counsel came into court.

"He has left the place."

"Left the place? What do you mean?"

"Why, Your Honor gave me instructions to do the best advice I could. I asked him if he were guilty and he replied that he was not, so I opened the window and advised him to jump out and run for it. He took my advice."

FORBES' VIEWS on FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Which is the largest of America's more modern industries?

The automobile industry.

What is to be one of the coming important developments?

"Greater recognition of the attractiveness of automobile securities by conservative investors." Is the reply of Alvan Macauley, president of the Packard Motor Car Company.

This doubtless is so. But careful investors will leave severely alone the stocks of newly launched car shops to be launched in automobile ventures. Careful investors will leave such stocks to speculators and gamblers. Careful investors will part with their savings only for the shares of tested and tried automobile companies that demonstrated stability and established merit.

* * *

Mr. Macauley is one automobile leader who does a lot of thinking. He looks ahead. He delves deeply. What he says is entitled to thoughtful consideration.

Mr. Macauley recognizes that the extraordinarily rapid growth of the automobile industry has caused it to be regarded as rather speculative by those looking for safety of principal and steadiness of income. "But," says Mr. Macauley, "the railroads were once viewed in this light. Yet no one today doubts the basic soundness of high grade railroad securities as investments. In the same way we can expect the securities of first class automobile manufacturing companies to become an outstanding group with marked and distinctive investment advantages.

"The first fact upon which an appreciation of the thoughtful investing public is based is the size and growth of the industry. The automobile admittedly is today as necessary as the railroad.

"Motor transportation in the number of passengers and in passenger mileage, has now out distanced the railroad, and in tonnage carried although not in ton mileage it is at least equal to the railroads.

"In less than a quarter of a century the automobile industry, in magnitude, has grown more than the four times as old railroad industry.

"The actual physical investment in the automobile industry is between one and a half and two billion dollars.

"The total number of passenger cars and trucks produced in 1922 was 2,576,291.

"There were registered in the United States in 1922 a total of 13,557,376 motor vehicles.

"Production in 1922 was the highest on record and may be considered an adequate conservative answer to any in doubt as to the industry's capacity for growth.

"Perhaps this rapid development has distracted attention from its inherent stability. There have been, and there may be in the future, adverse fluctuations, but such fluctuations cannot be considered anything but superficial.

"The question of the 'saturation point' has really less bearing on the stability of the industry than is commonly supposed. The automobile industry will reach the saturation point only when the population of the civilized world reaches the saturation point, because the use of the automobile must grow with the population, even if all possible owners at any given time are owners.

"A more important consideration is that the bulk of the automobile business in the future will be replacements, and not sales to new owners.

"With the average life of a car figured at six seasons, and with the twelve million vehicles in operation, it is logically estimated that in the near future replacement alone will call for approximately 2,000,000 vehicles annually. This at a minimum, therefore, the demand must be large and enduring.

"After magnitude and stability come management and control of production and distribution. From the factory viewpoint, the organization of the automobile industry is in many ways more advanced than any other. Standardization is at once an ideal and a practical reality. Operations have been so mechanized that the human element has been reduced to a minimum even in the most intricate processes.

"Control of production is, therefore, as near perfect as it can humanly be—and this, too, in spite of the fact that the automobile is by far the most complex machine produced in quantity.

"The other consideration is the decree to which management controls its market operations. The truth is that the automobile industry is the leading exponent of modern methods of merchandising. Nobody drops into a general automobile store to 'buy an automobile.' Price ranges, types, styles and makes are complexly standardized, individualized and impressed on the public mind through advertising as in no other industry. These factors are the very fundamentals of successful market control.

SHONNARD & CO.—We have a favorable opinion of the market, and advise careful selections among the coppers and motor group. The oils should be bought on set-backs.

A. S. BACHE & CO.—The market is undergoing a severe and important test. It is prudent to curry only a part of former holdings during such a period of indecision.

F. B. KEECH & CO.—Copper shares should be held and not sold for the present. We look for a rising market and increasing speculation.

E. F. HUTTON & CO.—There has been quite a little profit-taking and there are selling orders above the market. We feel there is a chance of a technical reaction.

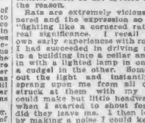
Rats Cannibalistic



When rats are imprisoned and cannot escape, others are forced to feed them and tear them to pieces. One authority reports that a battle between rats, when one cannibal was wounded and the others killed. Immediately the other rats pounced on the victor and ate them both. It is remarkable how rats increase under the number of rodents in the world, that is, in countries of dead rats are not found. Rats that die from natural causes would not be eaten. This cannibalistic habit of the species may explain this increase.

Rats are extremely vicious when cornered and the writer has seen a rat attack a "fighting like a cornered rat" has some truth in the saying. I recall one of my own early experiences with rodents, when I had several rats in a small box. I placed in a building into a cellar and I stepped in with a lighted lamp in one hand and a cudgel in the other. Something blew out the light and instantly the rats all sprang upon me from all

Sugar Goes Up, Pleasant for Gamblers

Mr. Hoover Will Tell You About It

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

Thanks to the Department of Commerce frightening consumers, obliging food gamblers and stock speculators with predictions of scarcity, sugar has gone up in price about 30 per cent.

This means millions taken from little sugar users to hand to the speculators. Mr. Hoover will probably tell the people how that happened and who is responsible for the official scare so quickly utilized by speculators at public expense.

500 Against 380,000

Can the 500 Win? Yes, Ma'am

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

The New York Chamber of Commerce rebukes the Governor of the State because of his Home Rule bill. He replies that only 500 attended the Chamber of Commerce meetings. A majority of 380,000 voted for the platform on which he was elected, and that platform contained the home rule features. He wants to know what the 500 amount to against the 380,000 in a republic?

The answer is, it all depends on HOW MUCH the 500 have got? It is easy enough to pick out a DOZEN men in the country that have more to say about legislation than any MILLION men of the ordinary rough-and-tumble "cast-your-vote-and-forget-about-it" kind.

Hens Can't Fight Weasels

They Haven't Any Teeth

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

A dispatch from Moscow tells of plans for "joint military action between the Russian and German governments against France." That doesn't seem likely yet. Germany has no weapons, unless she has been secretly manufacturing them in one of Stinnes' Russian plants. And that isn't the kind of thing a cautious business man does.

Two hundred million Russians and Germans would have a poor chance against small France. Two million well-armed Frenchmen, with Foch to direct them, and the terrific French enthusiasm that comes with victory back of them, would go slaughtering through the Germans and Russians like weasels in a henhouse.

Coal Famine and Pneumonia

State Physician Carey Declares Scarcity of Fuel Causes Many Deaths

Dr. Bernard W. Carey, State Physician in the Massachusetts Board of Health, tells us that 450 people died of pneumonia last month. He tells us also that the coal scarcity was largely responsible for these deaths.

He explains that resistance is low when the body is cold and that the resistance to disease is the protecting armor of life. When that is broken down life stands naked to all the disorders to which flesh is heir.

All this danger to life and health and comfort was known months and months ago by Congress and by the President and by the national Cabinet. The power was all in their hands to protect us. Yet they did nothing. Now the Interstate Commerce Commission is intervening after the damage is done and at a time when nothing can be accomplished until Spring comes and the trouble is over. Locking the barndoor after the horse is stolen is the indoor and outdoor sport of our national government.

The only ones that this deliberate and wilful inefficiency amuses are the speculating gentlemen who profit by it. They get both the profit and the amusement, while the rest of the community not only suffers, but is laughed at.

The Direct Primaries

We Do Not Believe People of New Hampshire Want to Abolish Them and Return to Old Serfdom

We wonder how long it is going to take the reactionary Republican organization of New Hampshire to learn that evolution does not evolve backwards; that when men who govern themselves work out an improvement in their government through the travail of bitter experience they never go back to the evil they abolished.

The first substitute may not last long. It may be followed by a still greater improvement. The evolution may not stop at either the first or the second step. It may go on continuously. But men never go back to the first evil any more than we go back to the spe.

The proposal of the reactionary New Hampshire Republicans to abolish direct primaries has passed the New Hampshire Senate, which is Republican by a large majority, although a large majority of the people of New Hampshire voted for the Democratic ticket. New Hampshire is one of those atrociously gerrymandered States in which democracy if often defeated and in which, on account of this gerrymander, the State frequently ceases to have a Republican form of government, in that the minority rather than the majority frequently rule.

The bill, of course, cannot pass the Democratic House, nor could it pass the Governor, who would veto it. But it is shameful to have any legislative body in New England vote to return to the old caucus and convention system, and thus to have party bosses snap the whip and politicians jump through the ring.

New Hampshire above all other New England States, except possibly Rhode Island, ought not to want to go back to the old convention system and thus once more hold out both wrists for political agents of the Boston & Maine Railroad and their industrial allies in New Hampshire to snap on the manacles. New Hampshire wore Boston & Maine handcuffs for a great many years. A few men like Winston Churchill, ex-Governor Bass, ex-Senator Henry Hollis and ex-Congressman Ray Stevens, and finally the public operation of the railroads during the war and Secretary McAdoo's abolition of the entire body of railroad lobbyists, freed the State.

Do the people of New Hampshire want to go back again to their old serfdom? We do not believe it. The New Hampshire Senate is as unrepresentative in passing this bill as they are in the manner of their election.

SOME SAD MUDDLES FEDERAL BUDGETS WILL CLEAR

By Herbert Kaufman

PRESIDENT HARDING is rearranging the government departments. They're a botchy lot as present constituted.

Three different secretaries often exercise clashing authority over the same public interest.

These loosely defined jurisdictions provoke constant administration quarrels.

During the late war the Commissioner of Education, in the Interior Department, was regularly embarrassed by the public school activities of the Department of Labor.

Interior and agriculture have for years been at daggers' points on the national park situation.

And forty-seven separate agencies for Americanization, without a central idea or a half dozen common denominators, blithesomely wasted money and time in 1919.

The new budget largely eliminates these muddles. A more intelligent classification of respective Cabinet domains will make for happier Presidential families and taxpayers.

Why Not Start at the Beginning?

Chief Justice Taft is also working for expedition of public business. He recommends a number of short cuts in court procedure.

His distinguished opinion on four-to-five Supreme Court decisions would be of extreme interest as well.

Layman judgment very much supports Senator Borah's contention that Constitutional questions should not be decided by a majority of one.

But why not go farther back—even to the juries whose verdicts start the wheels moving?

Is it logical to require unanimity in the court of origin and finally settle the case, even by a seven-to-nine opinion, on the all-highest bench?

Borah Sauce for the Gander, Too

But Senator Borah doesn't seem to object to the passage and defeat of statutes by a margin of one congressional vote. Sauce for the judicial goose ought to be cause for the legislative gander, too.

We may also at this time fittingly study the obstructive power of individuals in both houses, whose rules of procedure cause half the delays and confusions that retard accomplishment.

Points of order and filibusters, committee strategy and other Parliamentarian finesses need a thorough airing as well.

These are the cunning levers that switch and ditch important and pressing measures.

The Gentleman With the Monkeywrench

Politicians love noisy, complicated machinery. Simplified procedure limits the opportunity to throw monkeywrenches into the works. They don't want the people to understand the processes by which the country is governed.

If ever a Charlie Dawes goes through the offices and cloak rooms on Capital Hill, his reports and recommendations will furnish scareheads for a month.

Secret diplomacy has nothing on secret conferences.

Why not stenographic records of House and Senate bobnobings, as well as floor debates? One hundred and ten million stockholders of these United States should know everything that occurs when their directors meet anywhere.

Lenine Could Hardly Ask More

Perhaps Brookhart or Heflin, who seem ready to speak out in meeting on almost any occasion, will some day jerk down the curtain and reveal what's happening behind the scenes.

Heflin won countless friends yesterday by forcing immediate relief for a broken-backed American officer.

Brookhart, on the other hand, made proposals that would promptly break the back of convalescent prosperity.

Lenine himself seldom went to further extremes than advising hundred per cent. surplus taxes. The Brookhart resolution would take 50 per cent. of all corporation surpluses above $200,000.

The Senator would even take all income above a certain point. He doesn't say what we ought to do for business when panic sweeps the country and the hay made while the sun shines alone foods pay envelopes and keeps industry going.

How We Safeguard the Hoplessly Helpless

What America now needs are lighter taxes. Nothing else will bring relief from burdensome living costs.

He might better introduce a bill compelling the States to standardize insanity statutes.

Calamities like the Ward's Island holocaust bitterly indict democracy itself.

Eighteen hundred lunatics, scores of war veterans among them, trapped in a barred structure designed for six hundred. Built in 1870, faultily wired, undermanned, with only the crudest defence against fire—that's how we safeguard our hopelessly helpless.

You'll notice no pork barrels for them.

Still Far From Justice or Efficiency

And for a conclusion, consider the case of the Gordon girl in Massachusetts. Heiress to $400,000 and, with three different persons fighting to control her funds while she remains in an asylum.

The estates of incompetents do not belong in the hands of private trustees.

Courts should be compelled to place the feeble-minded and their fortunes in charge of trust companies.

Federal and State supervision remove such institutions from all possible suspicion of profiting through the unnecessary detention of their charges.

It also designates the use to which their money can be put.

Even with 70,000 laws to guide and guard democracy, we're still some distance from justice and efficiency.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

AMERICANISM

By Bruno Lessing.

MANY letters have been received commenting on a recent article on Americanism, some approving, some finding fault. One writer says:

"You are perfectly right. I fought in the war and belong to the American Legion and I ought to know what Americanism is."

Thanks, my dear boy, for agreeing with me but I cannot agree with you. I am glad you fought in the war and I'm glad you belong to the Legion, but neither of those facts proves that you know what Americanism is.

If you had said you volunteered in the war because of your belief in Americanism and that you joined the Legion because you felt they were going to uphold the ideal of Americanism, it is very likely that your deep interest might prove that you were a real American.

Americanism is an ideal of the human mind and heart. It is not merely a set of laws. This ideal was carried into political effect by our thirteen original colonies in one way. It is being carried out today in a different way.

How loudly would you howl if anyone suggested an amendment to the Declaration of Independence?

Solon's Protege Sent to Prison

CRAWFORDVILLE, Ind., Feb. 21.—Donald Caldwell, twenty-two, sophomore in Wabash College, one of the brightest men in his class and a protege of Senator W. B. McKinley of Illinois, was sentenced to from one to fourteen years in the Indiana State Reformatory here when he pleaded guilty to a Grand Jury indictment charging grand larceny and embezzlement.

Caldwell had been employed at a local clothing store during the Christmas rush and confessed to having stolen money and clothing during his employment. Caldwell was being sent through school by the Illinois Senator.

THE VOICE OF NEW ENGLAND

Not Fit for Office

Editor Boston American:

In light of the evidence, Mr. Phelan is not fit for the office he holds. He broke his own commandments when so many poor people were suffering for coal and helped himself, but did not try to relieve the coal situation. Such a man is not to be trusted and should be put out of office.

JAMES REID.

Broke Commandment

Editor Boston American:

Mr. Phelan broke the fourth commandment, first in ordering anthracite coal when he had more than thirty days' supply in his cellar. Secondly, he broke the fourth commandment when he ordered more than thirty days' supply of range coal, which goes to show that regulations are only for the poor.

T. J. QUIRKE.

Dorchester.

A Contrast

Editor Boston American:

A public servant like the Massachusetts emergency fuel administrator should be a shining example and strict observer of the rules he lays down and expects others to follow. Contrast the ratio of NINE tons of coal to a man placed in charge of its equal distribution to that of not more than ONE ton to the rest of us who are taxed to pay this man a salary to see that fair play is duly administered to all.

Malden. JOHN P. MULLOY.

Phelan Not Included

Editor Boston American:

I think Mr. Phelan did not break his rule when he bought the coal, because he might think as emergency fuel administrator he was not included in his own rules. I also think he did not include himself in his rules because he wrote down that he bought the coal, and if he was afraid of being caught he wouldn't convict himself.

CATHERINE MOYNAHAN.

Portsmouth, N. H.

Brilliant Future

Editor Boston American:

Mr. Phelan, without a doubt, broke his own commandment, for he says no anthracite coal, etc., and buckwheat coal is anthracite coal. But suppose Mr. Phelan should freeze, what in the world would Massachusetts do for an administrator? No doubt Mr. Phelan thought of this when he stocked his bins. I would advise the State of Massachusetts to hold on to Mr. Phelan. I can see a brilliant future for a man of his ability and forethought, possibly as a railroad president.

Editor Helping Hand:

I was greatly interested in Mrs. J. K.'s letter asking for a crib and mattress. I have a nice white lulla-by, and a mattress that has never been used. I would also like to know if she would like a few nice clean, warm diapers for her baby and a few clothes to fit a baby a year and a half to two years old? If she doesn't live too far from Roxbury, I would try to get them to her in my car. I have a nice yellow reed carriage for a new baby that I would like to sell at the first of April for $5.

Florida Fishing Is Profitable

FORT PIERCE, Fla., Feb. 21.—Fishing beats banking and is far safer than poker playing, according to six men who went fishing here a few days ago.

They turned in their catch at a local market—all caught in the good old-fashioned way, with a hook and line—and the catch ran from 1,060 pounds to 2,340 pounds, the latter the largest ever recorded in Florida waters in the hook-and-line sweepstakes.

This catch brought $424.80, which, all in all, made it a pretty fair day's work.
